William 'Paddy' Griffin Enters By-Election Race As Soldiers' Candidate

William "Paddy" Griffin, popular welfare officer of the Edmonton Canadian Legion branches, who served in France with the 1st Canadian Railway Troops in the First World War, and a resident of Edmonton since 1927, was nominated as a soldiers' candidate to contest the by-election on September 22 next, at a public meeting of ex-servicemen and women held in the Memorial Hall Thursday night.

The nomination of the widely known war veteran, brings to five the number of candidates in the field for the seat made vacant through the death of the late D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., Independent member of the Alberta legislative assembly.

Other candidates are: Elmer E. Roper, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation; Major Nolles V. Buchanan, M.C., Liberal, J. B. Gillies, Social Credit, and J. F. Lymburn, K.C., Independent. Mr. Roper filed his nomination papers with H. H. Crawford, returning officer on Thursday.

Nominations close Saturday.

UNANIMOUS APPROVAL

The public meeting at which Mr. Griffin won unanimous approval, was attended by about 50 persons and it was made clear by Chairman John Turner and President H. E. Tanner of the Canadian Legion, and others who spoke briefly from the platform, that the gathering was in no way sponsored by any existing organization of war veterans.

For a time after the meeting opened it seemed certain that efforts to nominate a candidate would fail, many of those present contending the meeting was not sufficiently representative of veterans in the city to warrant placing a candidate in the field.

Terror Reign Is Intensified By Nazi Thugs

By JOHN A. PARRIS

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(BUP)—German troops and occupation authorities are intensifying a reign of terror to keep pace with increasing sabotage and resistance inspired by hopes of a second front, reports from conquered Europe indicated today.

Heavy guerilla fighting continues in Yugoslavia. The Swiss newspaper Neue Zuercher Zeitung reported from Budapest that a German paper printed in Yugoslavia announced a "mobile" courtmartial in Zagreb had sentenced seven women and three men to death on charges of sheltering Yugoslav patriots or of spreading rumors. Sentences of two of the women were commuted to five years' imprisonment, but the other executions were carried out immediately.

PARRIS

The court ordered the execution of a police agent charged with allowing a Yugoslav patriot to escape from prison.

STORIES OF HORROR

The Yugoslav embassy here quoted two escaped Serbian prisoners that Serbs were being shipped in cattle cars to Norway for forced slave labor there under merciless flogging. In Norway, the escaped Serbs said, the laborers were shot if they showed signs of fatigue. Some starved to death. They reported 50 were shot in one day, including the Belgrade engineer Sinisa Savic and several teachers and students.

Polish circles reported that Governor Hans Frank, since the assassination of Reinhardt Heydrich, travels the streets of Cracow only with a heavy guard of troops and police, with a truck mounting machine-guns following his limousine.

A high official who escaped to Palestine from Crete reported to the Greek government in exile that more than 3,000 have been executed to date in Crete. The victims, he said, are compelled to dig their own graves and then shot before the eyes of the inhabitants.

Soldiers' Nominee

William "Paddy" Griffin, welfare officer of the Canadian Legion here for many years, who was nominated as a soldiers' candidate, to contest the by-election on Sept. 22, at a meeting of ex-servicemen in the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall Thursday night.

Aussie Bayonet Wielders Stop Japs' Advance

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Bayonet-wielding Australian troops were reported today to have checked a swift Japanese advance toward Port Moresby in fierce hand-to-hand fighting which still was raging on the southern slopes of New Guinea's towering Owen Stanley mountains 44 airline miles from that vital Allied base.

A terse headquarters communique said the Japanese had failed to advance yesterday from Efogi, which they reached the day before after a 12-mile push across the summit of the mountains, but indicated the battle had not reached a decisive phase.

"Bitter fighting continues with casualties heavy on both sides," the bulletin said.

PLANS WORKED OUT

Prime Minister John Curtin, meanwhile, assured the Australian House of Representatives in Canberra the Allied command had prepared plans to stabilize the situation in New Guinea. Latest information from the front said these plans now are being carried out, he added.

Mr. Curtin disclosed that high-ranking Allied officers had visited New Guinea recently to study the problem on the spot.

The fighting in New Guinea was said to be centering around a narrow mountain trail south of Efogi, but the difficulty of communication with the front made it impossible to obtain details of the action.

Dominion Giving Wheat to Greece

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP)—As an outright gift to the starving Greek people, Canada is prepared to ship 15,000 tons of wheat a month to that country and considerable quantities already have gone forward, Trade Minister MacKinnon said today.

Under international agreement, eight Swedish ships have been made available for the transport of the grain, and Mr. MacKinnon said Canada is prepared to make provision from its wheat stocks to maintain shipments at the rate of 15,000 tons a month.

With more than 400,000,000 bushels of wheat on hand from past crops and a new harvest of more than 600,000,000 bushels soon to be gathered, Canada has an abundance of grain on hand, and Mr. MacKinnon said there is no indication of how long the shipments may be continued.

New R.C.A.F. Drill Hall Here May Free Arena for Hockey

Construction will start immediately on a large, new building at No. 3 R.C.A.F. Manning Depot at the Exhibition Grounds, to provide urgently required training facilities for airmen here, it was learned on reliable authority Friday.

The new building, which may cost close to $100,000, will be used primarily as a drill hall and it is hoped to have the structure completed before freeze-up.

With the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan being greatly stepped up, the existing facilities at the Manning Depot are in no way adequate to take care of the training of additional hundreds of airmen who are arriving each week from all parts of the British Commonwealth of Nations.

If the additional space made available by the new building is sufficient to meet all requirements for training, there is a possibility that the Arena Building may again become available for ice hockey.

This was learned following the arrival here Thursday of Squadron Leader Lionel Conacher, former star athlete and now director of athletics and recreations for the R.C.A.F.

Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher had a long conference on Friday morning with Wing Commander W. G. Webber, officer commanding No. 3 Manning Depot.

VISITS MAYOR

Following his conference with Wing Commander Webber, Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher stated the situation is one in which the availability of training facilities is the issue.

"Providing contemplated additional facilities can be completed before winter and provided these facilities are sufficient to permit the use of the Arena as an ice rink for part of the time, there may be hockey played there this winter," Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher said.

Even though the arena becomes available for hockey again, it will still serve as a drill and recreational building in addition, it was pointed out.

FIR FLOOR LAID

Ever since the air force took over the grounds, the arena has been used for sports and games in addition to being a drill building. A firwood floor was laid over the pipes of the artificial ice plant but this could be easily removed.

"The officers at the manning depot are keen to have the rink again used for hockey but, as I pointed out before, there may still not be sufficient room for all training purposes even with the contemplated facilities," Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher concluded.

If the arena becomes a hockey rink again, Edmonton fans will probably be treated to service league hockey this winter. There could be at least one air force team here, with army teams at Red Deer, Wetaskiwin and Camrose.

There are many fine hockey players in the R.C.A.F. establishments in Edmonton and these could play on Saturdays without any interruption to their training as airmen, the squadron leader stated.

Second Front Moves Keeping Nazis on Edge

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

British United Press Foreign Editor

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(BUP)—Allied preparations for a second front appeared today to have moved into the war-of-nerves stage with a calculated effort to keep Adolf Hitler guessing which of half a dozen points in Europe and Africa may bear the brunt of the initial blow.

The second front, it now seems clear, has passed over from the stage of planning and blueprints to that of preparation for real action.

Coincidentally, there has been a sharp change in official attitude toward speculation as to where the Allied attack will strike. For the first time an official hand has been laid on the previous virtually free rein allowed for transmitting reports, rumors and hunches concerning the possible landing place for the Allied invasion forces.

Today, however, censorship officials are on the alert for all such reports and even have warned

Mosher Again Heads Railmen

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP)—A. R. Mosher of Ottawa was today re-elected president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railwaymen and other transport workers. He has headed the brotherhood since its inception in 1908. He is also president of the Canadian Congress of Labor.

Elroy Robson of Toronto, Ontario general representative, was elected vice-president. J. E. McGuire of Ottawa was made secretary-treasurer.

MOSCOW, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The most powerful army the Germans ever assembled in Russia, surpassing even the great force which they flung in vain at Moscow last year, was reported today to have been commanded by Hitler to take Stalingrad at any price. But that Volga bastion still held.

The Russian army newspaper Red Star said the Axis forces before Stalingrad outnumbered those of any previous campaign. About 1,000,000 men on each side participated in the battle for Moscow last fall, hitherto the greatest single engagement of the war.

Dispatches said attackers and defenders were fighting in a maelstrom of noise, fire and smoke, planes filling the sky with their roaring and screaming and the ground shaking to the clash of tanks and the thunder of bombs and shells.

EXHORT DEFENDERS

The editorial in Red Star set a serious tone for the day's press comment, exhorting the defenders to fight to the last, recalling the grim measures taken by Joseph Stalin for the defence of the city in 1918 against White Russian forces.

The mid-day communique announced that German automatic rifle men infiltrated western defences of Stalingrad where Nazi troops won three more outlying villages yesterday, but more than 100 of the riflemen were slain.

The fall to the Axis of another settlement southwest of the Volga river industrial centre was recorded and, for the first time in several days, fighting was reported south of Stalingrad.

Duesseldorf Battered in Heavy Raid

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Hundreds of British bombers unloaded a terrific weight of high explosives over Duesseldorf last night, spreading the destruction wrought in that important German industrial city in 49 previous raids.

The striking force included two squadrons of the R.C.A.F., whose aircraft left many fires burning after their bombing runs, R.C.A.F. headquarters reported.

Other targets in western Germany also were attacked during the night operations, which British authorities said had cost the R.A.F. 31 planes.

NUMBER NOT GIVEN

The exact number of aircraft which participated in the assault was not disclosed, but from first reports it seemed probable it exceeded the total employed in the last great attack on that city July 31.

Thirty planes were lost in that raid.

Duesseldorf, 24 miles from Cologne on the right bank of the Rhine, is a great centre of metallurgical, machinery and chemical industries.

The attack came after a one-night lull in the British air offensive during which Russian bombers kept up the pounding of Germany by raiding Berlin, Budapest and Koenigsberg.

It was the seventh R.A.F. night attack upon Germany in the last 10 nights.

SPLIT NAZI DEFENCES

Observers in London saw in the whipsawing British and Russian attacks evidence of a co-ordinated program designed to spread Germany's aerial defences thinly over a broad area and thus make the Reich even more vulnerable to massed assaults.

Russian reports on the Soviet raids Wednesday night, when bad weather in the west kept the R.A.F. at home, said 38 fires were started in Budapest, 12 in Berlin and 16 in Koenigsberg. Moscow reported the loss of two bombers.

Britain again was raid-free last night after R.A.F. fighters had brought back several small-scale German forays along the east coast during the evening.

Allied Sub Sinks 2 Jap Transports With 2,000 Troops

CHUNGKING, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Two Japanese transports loaded with 2,000 troops and supplies were torpedoed and sunk by an allied submarine off the Fukien coast Aug. 2, the Chinese Central News Agency reported today.

The agency said the transports were off the Min river estuary and headed south when attacked.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP)—British forces, encountering but little resistance and suffering small losses, have captured the three west coast ports on the French island of Madagascar against which operations were started yesterday, Prime Minister Churchill informed the House of Commons today.

It was an all-Empire undertaking, without participation of the Fighting French, a British military commentator said. This informant placed the strength of the Vichy garrison on the island at no more than 10,000 troops, mostly natives with white officers and "a company or two of white troops."

Japanese reconnaissance planes recently had been sighted over the island, separated from the east coast of Africa by the Mozambique channel, the British commentator said.

THOUGHT CARRIER-BASED

He surmised they came from an aircraft carrier since, he said, the Japanese have no air base within reach of Madagascar.

Although negotiations had been going on between British foreign office representatives and the island government for some time, a foreign office source said, "it was apparent there could be no real basis for negotiation so long as Axis pressure on Vichy continued."

Besides the three ports, a British communique announced, the island of Nosy-Be on the sea approach to Ambanja has been captured.

Moreover, British troops which have been in possession of Diego Suarez, in the north extremity

Edmonton Flier Finds Flak Bad At Duesseldorf

By ALAN RANDAL

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Canadian bombers which participated in the attack on Duesseldorf last night reported encountering a heavy wall of anti-aircraft fire and intense concentrations of searchlights.

Two R.C.A.F. squadrons took part in the raid and they left many fires burning after their bombing runs.

"It was one of the best concentrations of fires I have ever seen," Sqdn. Ldr. Don Pattison of Toronto, flight commander of a Wellington squadron, said.

The crew of a Halifax skippered by Sgt. Jack Campbell of The Pas, Man., who were among the first over the target, encountered stiffer opposition and returned to base with only three of their four engines turning over.

"We had to pass through a wall of flak," said Flt. Sgt. W. L. Dark of Edmonton, navigator. "They were really shooting it up this time."

A piece of flak hit the cooling system of their starboard outer motor.

Canada's Aid Saved Defeat Of Britain Declares King In War Anniversary Talk

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King last night reviewed the first three years of Canada at war in a radio address and told Canadians they should take a "legitimate pride" in their war effort.

In an address delivered over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Mr. King said Canadian aid had saved Britain from defeat and starvation in the uncertain months after the fall of France.

He paid tribute to Russia and China, and all the nations which resisted the Axis powers, and declared they had all contributed to "ultimate victory."

WOULD BE CURSE

Picturing the horrors of defeat by the Axis powers Mr. King said domination by a "benevolent despot" might be bearable but domination by the present enemies of democracy would be "an unmixed curse."

The prime minister said Canada was first of the new world nations to see the real issue in this conflict and to decide to fight.

Similarly Canada had led the new world in taking steps on the economic front in provision of essential munitions and supplies, in war taxation and financing, in safeguarding against inflation and profiteering and in the conservation of raw materials.

After three years of war Canada had 500,000 volunteers in the three branches of the armed services which, he said, was the equivalent of 5,000,000 United States troops if that country had raised as many in proportion to population.

Mr. King said when France fell Canada sent "everything we possessed that had immediate military value" to help defend Britain

Prominent Grain Official Passes

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP)—A. E. Darby, former secretary of the Winnipeg grain exchange, died at his Ottawa home this morning.

Mr. Darby, aged 62, had been associated with the personnel branch of the wartime prices and trade board recently.

An expert on the grain trade, Mr. Darby was widely-known in the west and held his office in the grain exchange during years of tremendous activity as market trading in wheat by the western wheat production. He was a former newspaperman.

In 1923 he joined the Canadian Council of Agriculture and served with that organization until 1931 as secretary and director of economic research.

He went to the grain exchange in 1931 and held the post of secretary until 1940.

Minister Quits

VICHY, Sept. 11—(AP)—Jacques Leroy-Ladurie resigned today as minister of agriculture and was replaced by Max Bonnafous, chief-of-government, Laval announced. Bonnafous retains the office of secretary of state for food and supply.

Big Train Lionel Conacher Here On Sports Mission for R.C.A.F

By JACK DeLONG

The Big Train is back in the game again. There is only one Big Train in Canada. He is Lionel Conacher, once Canada's perfect composite athlete.

But the big fellow from down Toronto way, who could play more games well than any other chap, big or little, in the history of the Dominion, is now Squadron Leader Lionel Conacher, M.P.P. for Toronto (Bracondale), athletic director of the R.C.A.F.

The Big Train of a few years back swooped down from the skies in an R.C.A.F. plane Thursday and is making Edmonton his headquarters until Saturday, while he looks over the sport and recreation situation for airmen at city R.C.A.F. establishments.

The athlete, who could always be depended on to pull the unexpected in the way of strategy on the gridiron or ice arena brings a kind of secret weapon into the air force with him.

"Air Minister Power is strongly of the opinion that the right kind of recreation and sport is just as important to the student airmen training under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan as their other training," Squadron Leader Conacher said.

SQD.-LDR. CONACHER

"We are going to try and organize sports in the R.C.A.F. Canadian establishments so that the leisure hours of the boys in training will be taken up to a greater extent in sports and recreations that the men themselves desire," continued the former athletic star.

"On my present tour I am gathering the facts. I'm trying to ascertain what the airmen themselves would like to do. When I find out what they want I will report back to headquarters at Ottawa. Then we will organize the set-up for carrying out the program the airmen have indicated they most desire," he continued.

"I'm not trying to force the men to take up any particular sport. For instance if we find out they want ping pong, then it is ping pong that they will play. This is a fact-finding survey," the officer said.

SEEKS HOCKEY TALENT

Right at the moment the air force sports director is interested in setting up some R.C.A.F. hockey teams, for the coming winter. Present plans call for entering air force clubs in leagues that will be form-

Independent Files Papers In By-Election

J. F. Lymburn, K.C., independent party candidate in the by-election on Sept. 22, and former attorney general of Alberta in the U.F.A. government, filed his nomination papers with H. H. Crawford, returning officer, at the latter's headquarters Friday.

Two of the five candidates now in the field have filed their papers of nomination with the official returning officer. Elmer E. Roner, C.C.F. Party candidate, was first to file his papers, having turned them in on Thursday morning.

Nominations close at 2 p.m. Saturday.

There were nine names on the papers filed by Mr. Lymburn. They are: H. Kelly Porter, W. Hillis, Cen Johnson, Dr. Leslie McIntyre, George Bissett, J. A. Davies, Mary Wright, Catherine McQueen and K. T. Dykes.

Fifty-one names have been added to the revised voters' list up until noon Friday. But only names of persons who should obviously be added, have been put on, as some of the official voters' lists have not been yet obtained from the printers.

Canada's Red Cross Supplies Superior Declares Bennett

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Viscount Bennett yesterday told the semi-annual meeting of the national executive committee of the Red Cross that Canada, through the Red Cross, sends a better type of supplies to Britain than any other nation.

Lord Bennett, who is chairman of the organization's overseas advisory committee, said "You have brought great comfort to people who have been blitzed and their belongings destroyed. You have made a contribution not only to your own people but to the world at large."

"The morale of the English people is unbelievable," Canada's former premier said. "They no longer pay attention to bombings. Never the less the danger is there at all times. Everybody in England lives dangerously."

Blood Purge in Stalingrad is German Threat

NEW YORK, Sept. 11. — (BUP)—The German radio promises a blood purge in Stalingrad if the Nazis succeed in capturing the city.

The Nazi broadcast declared the Germans would take vengeance on Russian civilians who are fighting with their soldiers in defence of the city. "These snipers," said the Berlin radio, "will be treated according to international law." The favorite German way to enforce international law is with a firing squad.

Workshop Unit Preparing For Active Season

No time is being lost at the Commando Armoury with installation of machine shop equipment to be used in training members of the No. 1 (Res.) Armoured Divisional Ordnance Workshop, R.C.O.C., to be qualified army tradesmen.

With the arrival of mechanic's tools, precision instruments and other equipment a technical storeroom is being opened while installation of lathe, vertical drill press, power grinder, the oxy-acetylene plant and blacksmith shop is proceeding rapidly. For the last two weeks R.C.E. workmen have been making alterations to the Armoury to accommodate the new workshop equipment and it is anticipated that practical instruction will start early in October.

In the meantime lectures covering technical subjects get under way this month, the initial lecture dealing with ordnance organization and functions in the field being scheduled for Monday, Sept. 14, to be followed by Lt. J. C. Dale on elementary principles of electricity. Lt. R. R. Couper on mechanical engineering, with Capt. G. H. N. Monkman taking the fourth lecture of the series.

PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION

Practical instruction, augmenting workshop training, will also continue during the winter months covering small arms, and featuring Bren light machine gun, the new Reising carbine (recent model) anti-tank rifle and similar weapons. It is anticipated that a technical instructor who has been taking Bren carrier and motor transport repair courses at the R.C.O.C. workshops at Currie Barracks will shortly be on duty at the South Side armory to give instruction to a motor mechanics' class, and in motor transport driving.

Capt. Charles E. Garnett, officer commanding the workshop, advises that there are still vacancies for the mechanical trades unit and are looking forward to a full day with their 30.06 rifles on the Winnifred range on Sept. 20, to work out their weapon training of the past four months.

Electors Are Asked to Get Names on List

Edmonton electors eligible to vote in the Sept. 22 provincial by-election and who have not received the necessary slips from enumerators were asked Friday to call at the returning officer's headquarters, 9916 Jasper Avenue, to have their names placed on the voters' list.

H. H. Crawford, returning officer, said his office would be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, and that electors whose names had been missed from the list could have them included by calling at the R.O.'s office on the days and between the hours mentioned.

It was explained that during their house-to-house canvass while compiling the voters' list, enumerators left slips with each elector interviewed. "The fact that an elector has not got one of these slips is a pretty good indication that his or her name does not appear on the voters' list," Mr. Crawford said.

NO PERMIT AT POLLS

He explained that those five voters would not be sworn in at the polls and allowed to vote on election day if their names did not appear on the list. They must have them placed on the list on the days mentioned.

The returning officer stated that all election officials had been appointed to handle the Sept. 22 vote. Letters to poll clerks were being put in the mail Friday informing clerks of the number of their polls and who their deputy returning officers are. After these letters are received by the clerks they are asked to contact the R.O.'s office for further information on their duties on election day.

Enumerators' vouchers to cover the cost of the enumeration have been forwarded to provincial government officials for checking, Mr. Crawford said. Some enumerators have already received their cheques in payment for their "nose-counting", and it is expected the remainder will receive payment by about the middle of next week.

Saturday, Sept. 12, is nomination day for the by-election and nomination papers from all candidates contesting the Sept. 22 vote must be filed with the returning officer at his headquarters by 2 p.m. Saturday.

Bounties For Cougars Now Are Studied

While no bounty has been set for cougars this year, the question is being considered, it was learned from provincial game branch officials following a report received from the Rocky Mountain House district that stock animals were attacking livestock.

In other years the bounty has been $20 an animal.

It was explained that any person killing a cougar could send a bounty warrant signed by the R.C.M.P. to the department. The person will receive payment when the 1942 bounty rate has been fixed.

While it is not believed there has been any substantial increase in the number of cougars this year, they are reported in the Rocky Mountain House district, in the area east of Cadomin and around the headwaters of the Red Deer river.

Courage Shown By Two French Leaders Praised

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—(AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull warmly praised today the courage and patriotism of Jean Jeanneney and Edouard Herriot, presidents of the now abolished French senate and chamber of deputies, who protested to Chief of State Petain against the pro-Axis policy of his government.

To Americans and to the French people generally, Hull said, there was tremendous significance in the utterances of these two Frenchmen. With rare courage, he said, they proclaimed what the United States government and other true friends of France have been proclaiming for some time.

Their words, Hull added at his press conference, will live in history.

HAMILTON, Ont., Sept. 11— (CP) —Announcements of Canadian navy successes in dealing with enemy submarines may be released shortly, navy minister Angus Macdonald told students at Westdale Technical school here today.

"During the last few months our Canadian navy has done a major work in the battle of the Atlantic," he said. "What it is I cannot say at the moment, for there is a time and place for everything and it may prove dangerous to give the public an account of the achievements at this time, but it will be made public in due course."

96 Jap Planes Downed Around Guadalcanal

By CLARK LEE

AT SEA WITH THE U.S. FLEET OF THE SOLOMONS, Aug. 31 — (Delayed) — (AP) — Ninety-six enemy planes were shot down in a far-flung battle fought over Guadalcanal island and at sea over a United States naval force.

Forty-seven were shot down by United States marines and army pilots, and the remainder by anti-aircraft guns. United States' losses were eight pilots missing.

The enemy now has lost more than 150 planes in the battle of the Solomons since Aug. 7.

Even dive-bombers and torpedo planes mixed it successfully with the enemy, the former bagging four and the latter one.

The most encouraging feature of the battle was that Japanese pilots were definitely inferior to those in previous flights over the Pacific, and their planes continued to show "flying funeral-pyre traits," bursting into flames and crashing when hit by even a few bullets.

Watching from the ship's bridge I saw fighter pilots shoot down 31 planes and anti-aircraft down 24 more in an action-packed 10 minutes as they broke up an 80-plane enemy formation attacking American ships. Fifty-five enemy planes plunged into the water, exploded or disintegrated in mid-air.

Cargo Plane Plan Impractical Says World War Flier

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 11. — (AP)—Henry J. Kaiser's plan for constructing huge cargo planes is impractical, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker believes, but he suggests the west coast shipbuilder be made co-ordinator of air cargo production, because of his ability to put materials and men to work. Cargo planes of the type suggested by Kaiser, the famed flier said in an interview, are impractical from the outset because such a plane would require land-locked harbors and lakes from which to operate.

Nazi Tanker Sunk

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP)—The Admiralty announced a German tanker was destroyed and an anti-aircraft vessel probably destroyed in a early morning naval encounter off the coast of Holland today.

An enemy armed trawler and at least six other small naval units were "severely damaged" while the British navy lost a motor gunboat, the communique said.

"MUST SHOW PEOPLE"

Japs' Inferiority Complex Makes Them Face Slappers

Following is the second of a series of dispatches on the Japanese people by Richard C. Hottelet, manager of the former British United Press Bureau in Manila.—EDITOR.

By RICHARD C. WILSON

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(BUP) — The slapping of many British and American faces in the far east by Japanese soldiers can be ascribed largely to the inferiority complex of Japanese people, in the opinion of veteran North American residents of Japan.

EXCLUSIVE

Face-slappings were more common in Hong Kong than elsewhere in the Jap-invaded areas of the Far East. This was probably due to the fact Hong Kong was the first Occidental territory to be captured by Japan in the war, and provided the Japanese military their first "victory celebration."

As a Japanese prisoner in Hong Kong, I saw groups of British, Dutch and Americans herded about the streets in groups for the "edification" of Chinese, Portuguese and other neutrals. Faces of "enemy aliens" were slapped at the slightest provocation.

"MUST SHOW PEOPLE"

I asked my Japanese guard, Corporal Yasuichi Uehara, one day why it was necessary to slap faces of prisoners so often. "You are our enemies," he explained. "Must show people you prisoner."

Half an hour later, Uehara stormed into my room and bluntly asked, in broken English, how much it would cost him to attend college for one year in the United States. Although my cheek still stung from the slapping of my guard an hour before, this seemingly innocent question left me bewildered. As it turned out, his question war in all sincerity.

Americans who have resided among Japanese for as long as 20 years have admitted their inability to understand these abrupt changes of feeling.

In this war, Japanese soldiers have been schooled to the belief that President Roosevelt is responsible for the United States and Japan being at war. Japanese soldiers have been inculcated with the belief all Occidentals are "foreign devils" and should be treated as such. The difference in treatment accorded by a Japanese soldier who had encountered "foreign devils" before and one who had never had experience with Occidentals was striking.

STARVATION RATION

British, Dutch and American captives of the Japanese army invariably were fed on the same basis as allowed for Japanese civilians in Japan—eight ounces of rice daily; two ounces of flour; one-half ounce of sugar, and a frugal amount of green vegetables plus a varying, but small, amount of fish or fresh meat. When complaints were made that this constituted a slow-starvation ration, Japanese officers replied that it was the same granted Japanese soldiers in the field.

Because of their traditional superiority complex, Chinese always have proved a thorn in the side of the Japanese. It stings a Japanese to know that his language came from China and that many of his customs originated in China or Korea. Likewise, the modern fighting implements used by Japan originated in the western world. Little he used today originated in Japan. This tends to increase his hatred of foreigners — Chinese and Occidentals alike—and heightens his desire to demonstrate his "superiority" at every opportunity.

MADE IN CHINA

Two days before I left Hong Kong to be repatriated to America, a Japanese official of the Hong Kong internment camp obtained for me a sorely needed pair of shoes. I noticed they had rubber soles, but had been made in China, but nonetheless expressed my thanks.

"We soon make much better in Japan," he explained, apparently having in mind the rubber plantations of Java and British Malaya. "Maybe you can buy me pair when I come New York after war."

That is the air of determination that the United Nations face in this Asiatic war.

Role of Press In War, Peace Told Authors

MONTREAL, Sept. 11.—(CP)—J. A. McNeil, general manager of the Canadian Press, addressing the Canadian Authors' Association last night, said it is not enough for the press of North America to go all-out for victory; it must also be prepared to do so now and henceforth for the peace to come."

It is difficult for even the most acute intelligence to visualize the chaos which will prevail the world over when the guns cease firing, Mr. McNeil said, and in the solution of the post-war problems the press can and will be an outstanding participant. "Its readiness to do so is already made apparent in widespread editorial support, or at least acceptance, of new national and international ideals, economic concepts and social reforms which not so long ago would have been anathema to press and public alike."

AVOID SPECIAL INTEREST

The after-war newspaper, Mr. McNeil thought, would avoid being too closely identified with any special interest, whether it be capital, labor, race, creed or political or social dogma.

Mr. McNeil felt that the chief function which newspapers should play in wartime was "the presentation in just proportions of news of the global war and of world-wide, domestic and local affairs, judiciously selected from the dismaying volume of material made available to them, supplemented by informed and reasoned comment."

This, he thought, was being done by the majority of Canadian daily and weekly papers within the limits imposed by their financial resources and wartime handicaps, the latter including shortage of staffs due to military necessities and the drafting of many skilled journalists to fill positions in the censorship and the publicity branches of the governments and armed services.

"One dis-service of which many newspapers may be justly accused," Mr. McNeil said, "is that they have yielded to a double temptation—desire to promote sales, and indulgence of the human propensity to prefer good news to bad.

"This has led to the realization by thinking persons that according to some of the papers we are winning the war in the front-page eight-column two-inch headlines while losing it or barely holding our own in the actual despatches below or in the inner pages."

REGAINING INFLUENCE

Mr. McNeil saw signs that newspapers were regaining in wartime, public influence which had diminished for various reasons.

"In recent months especially, criticism of public men and measures, and the interpretation and expression of the thoughts and desires of the citizenship at large, have caused governments on both sides of the international line to modify, amend or even reverse policies or proposals which were of dubious wisdom."

Mr. McNeil predicted that with shortages of some vital necessities, newspapers with the passing months are likely to have fewer pages, with a resultant cutting down of non-essential features and adoption of more concise writing.

Newspapers also were moving in the direction of providing more background and interpretation of the news, and, in this way, while performing its chief function of informing the public, "the press is also resuming to some extent its former place as a moulder of public thought."

OUTSTANDING SERVICE

Referring to the Canadian Press he said, "No country in the world of Canada's population, or even twice or thrice its population, receives a news service to compare with that of the Canadian Press in scope, accuracy and impartiality. In the war days still to come and the difficult years to follow peace and victory, the Canadian Press will be doing its full mead of service to its member newspapers and through them to all Canada."

from invasion, "leaving our own coasts perilously exposed."

Food and munitions were sent to Britain as fast as they could be transported. "It is literally true that after Britain was cut off from European supplies in 1940 her people and her fighting men were saved from starvation by Canadian food," he said.

"It was no exaggeration when Mr. Churchill told the world in September, 1941, that without Canada's war effort the resistance of the British Empire could not have been maintained."

TRIBUTE TO PEOPLE

Mr. King paid tribute to Canadian men and women for their efforts in the armed forces and in the industrial war effort and urged that to save Canada and the world from "the darkest forces of evil the world has ever known," would demand utmost effort of each and every individual in all of the United Nations.

He said that for a full year—June, 1940, to June, 1941—Canada, next to Britain, "was the strongest power actually at war with Nazi Germany."

"Three years ago it was difficult for men and women anywhere to believe what was told them of the probable duration of the war," the Prime Minister said at the start of his address.

"Much less were they prepared to believe that Hitler's aim was world conquest. I doubt if peoples whose countries have not been invaded even yet appreciate the magnitude of the enemy's designs. Only those who themselves have been the victims of Nazi or Japanese deception, terrorism and violence have begun to comprehend the real issue."

At the time of Britain's entry into the war he had said of the attack on Poland that the fate of a single city or the preservation of the independence of a particular nation were the occasion and not the cause of the conflict.

FREEDOM THREATENED

Subsequent events had made it clear that the war was one which threatened the freedom of mankind.

"I should like to draw a distinction tonight, as I did three years ago, between the cause of the war, and the real issue in the war. The cause, as I then said, was the lust for conquest—world domination. The real issue, however, goes even deeper.

"More than world domination is involved. Domination need not be wholly evil. You have heard it said that the best type of ruler is a benevolent despot. To have the world controlled by benevolence, however absolute the control, might not be an unmixed blessing. But a world ruled by a tyrant, himself the incarnation of evil, would not be a blessing in any form—it would be an unmixed curse. Yet that would be the fate of the world should the enemy triumph in the conflict between the Axis powers and the United Nations.

"The Nazi purpose," he said, "is to destroy every belief, and to subvert every institution which, from childhood days, men and women of the free countries of the world have been taught to reverence.

"Their aim is the total destruction of the Christian civilization.

"Some time before the invasion of Poland Hitler himself said; 'Whoever lights the torch of war in Europe can wish for nothing but chaos.' Nothing but chaos—that represents the sum of what Nazi Germany, thus far, has contributed to the world."

Three years ago it was difficult for men and women anywhere to believe what was told them of the probable duration of the war," the Prime Minister said at the start of his address.

MUST BE DESTROYED

"The aim of Nazi Germany and her militarist Japanese partner is not merely the conquest of territory, not even world domination itself. The forces of evil, incarnated in the Axis powers, are seeking to possess the world's soul, and to destroy the free spirit of man. They will accomplish this evil purpose unless they themselves are totally destroyed.

"The consequences of this conflict no living man or woman can possibly hope to escape. As the outcome of this war, mankind will either revert to a condition or barbarity and savagery resulting from world chaos, or, by release from bondage, humanity will rise to a new order of social justice and world security."

"Three years of war had made the issue clear to the peoples of the old world and it was necessary that those in the new world should be equally clear and realize the need for utmost contribution to ensure defeat of the enemy.

"Already many of the bravest of our land have given their lives in mortal combat against the evil forces that have been loosed on the world," he said. "We may be sure that those who have given their lives in so great a cause have not failed of their eternal reward. It is well, however, that those who have been bereaved should appreciate the sacrifice of their loved ones at its true worth. . . .

"They have fought and their lives have been sacrificed that the world's soul may not be possessed by the powers of darkness; that the free spirit of man may not be destroyed; that evil, instead of good, may not be exalted in our midst for generations to come. Many of them may not have been fully conscious of how great was the cause for which they went forth to fight.

"I question if they thought of any call save that of duty. But something immortal had been stirring in their breasts. It impelled them to action. We think of them, one and all, as they truly are, a part of the chivalry of God."

TURNS TO CANADA

Mr. King turned to Canada's part as a nation in three years of war.

"We are told so often that so little publicity has been given to Canada's war effort that I may be forgiven if I venture to say that, as a people, we can and should take a legitimate pride in the leadership which Canada has given to the other nations of the new world in the past three years.

"Canada was the first to see the real issue and the first to make the decision to fight. We were the first nation of the new world to support and to strengthen Britain when she alone stood between North America and a Nazi attack on this continent."

It was no detraction from Britain's honor in what had been described as her finest hour after the collapse of France to say that no period of the war reflected greater credit on Canada.

"When most of the rest of the world expected Britain to share the fate of France, Canada sent everything we possessed, that had immediate military value, to help defend Britain from invasion,' he said.

COASTS EXPOSED

Canadian coasts were perilously exposed when Canadian destroyers were sent to British waters, air squadrons needed there were sent overseas and aircraft, required for training in Canada, were turned back in mid-Atlantic.

Dispatch of a second division was accelerated and air training intensified while Canada's faith in Britain remained firm. Canadian troops actually landed in France, just prior to the fall of that country, and the Canadian navy assisted in the evacuation.

"For a full year, from June, 1940, to June, 1941, Canada, next to Britain, was the strongest power actually at war with Nazi Germany," he continued. "It was no exaggeration when Mr. Churchill told the world in September, 1941, that without Canada's war effort the resistance of the British Empire could not have been maintained. It should never be forgotten that if that resistance had crumbled, freedom might have perished from the earth.

For more than a year Canada kept the western approaches to the northern Atlantic between North America and Europe. The welcome support of the United States enabled Canadian forces to move to more advanced positions. In the Mediterranean, the Middle East and in Asia, Canada was the first of the new world nations to fight.

The recent visit of a Royal Canadian Air Force bombing crew to Ottawa and other Canadian cities was evidence of the prowess of Canadian fighting forces. This visit brought too an increasing consciousness of "the vastness and nearness of existing danger."

"Today half a million volunteers are on active service in the three armed forces," Mr. King continued. "To equal in numbers alone Canada's voluntary armed effort, the United States would require, in proportion to its population, to have on active service in its armed forces 8,000,000 men."

40,000 CONSCRIPTS

In addition Canada had more than 40,000 men engaged in compulsory military training for the duration of the war and tens of thousands giving their spare time to service in the reserve army.

"In three years of this war, without counting part time service at all, more men are serving or have served in the navy, army and air forces of Canada than the total number who served both voluntarily and compulsorily in the whole of the last war," he added.

Canada's expeditionary force in Britain was not simply an army corps but a Canadian army which at the end of the present year would consist of two complete corps, the second an armored corps.

"Naval ship production is keeping pace with the supply of trained men and even balance is being maintained between ships and men," he said speaking of the remarkable growth of the Royal Canadian Navy to a complement of more than 40,000 men and well over 400 ships in operation.

SACRIFICED THE SPECTACULAR

In deciding to concentrate on air training in the early stages of the war Canada deliberately sacrificed the immediately spectacular for slower but greater and more effective results. Today these results were to be seen on almost every battle front around the globe.

"On the economic front, as in the military sphere, Canada in this war has also led the way among the nations of the new world," Mr. King said. "We have led in the transformation from a peace time to a war time economy."

Canada had led the new world as an arsenal, granary and shipyard as well as in war taxation and finance, the conservation of raw materials, price control and profiteering and inflation, control of the cost of living and the overall employment of manpower.

Canada's production had never been limited to the needs of her own forces and Canadian weapons and munitions were in use in Egypt, Russia, the Southern Pacific and China. Canadian shipyards were an important factor in contributing to one of the most imperative war needs.

"As for foodstuffs, it is literally true that after Britain was cut off from European supplies in 1940, her people and her fighting men were saved from starvation by Canadian food," Mr. King said. "Canadian wheat and flour are now being sent in large quantities to Greece and to Russia. Canadian workmen and farmers are playing their full part in Canada's war effort."

LAUDS WOMEN'S EFFORT

The prime minister paid particular tribute to the splendid and growing part which women are taking in the achievement of an all-out Canadian effort."

Women of the nursing service had taken, as always, a pioneer role of women in wartime service. Members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps and the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force were on active service in all parts of Canada and some were already overseas. Soon similar duties would be undertaken by the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service.

"Equally worthy and equally essential work is being accomplished by the thousands of women in war industry," Mr. King continued. "Their growing skill is adding daily to the mounting volume of machines and munitions of war issuing from Canadian factories and workshops. In factories, offices, shops and farms all over Canada, women, in increasing numbers, are doing work formerly performed by men."

The women who were engaged in keeping together their homes and families were performing equally important work.

"If we on this continent have thus far escaped invasion either by Japanese forces from across the Pacific or by German forces from across the Atlantic, it is because of the resistance of our fighting men.

"To the peoples of Europe and Asia who have been overpowered and over-run, their resistance may seem to them to have been in vain. I do not believe their resistance has been in vain. Every nation that has resisted the foe, however short that resistance may have been, has contributed something to his ultimate defeat. . . .

CANNOT FORGET DEBT

"We who are still free can never forget the debt we owe to the people of Czechoslovakia, to the Poles, to the Norwegians, to the Dutch, to the Belgians, to the resisting French, to the Yugoslavs and to the Greeks. We know what we owe to the peoples of Britain, of China and of Russia. But for the efforts and the sacrifices of all who have resisted we might ere this have lost the liberty we still enjoy.

"However questioning we may have been in the past, there can no longer be any doubt that, from the first day of the war, whatever our motives, we have, in very truth, been fighting for our own preservation, for our own survival.

"The nations of the new world are not sending their forces to the old, whether it be across the Atlantic or across the Pacific, to further any imperial cause. It is to destroy a common enemy, and to keep the war away from our own soil.

"No one can say how long it will take to stay the aggressor. That will depend on the effort of each and every individual, all of the United Nations. We must gather our full strength for the supreme effort."

TASK OF LIBERATION

Halting the aggressor was the first step, crippling his power the next and then would remain the task of liberation.

"Those who have suffered so greatly have resisted the darkest forces of evil the world has ever known. Till these forces are totally destroyed there can be no enduring peace," he said.

Ottawa to Seek Call-Up Status Of New Classes

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP)—Pre-classification of men who are possible candidates for military call-up is regarded in informed circles as one of the most important features of the new manpower set-up which will link the call-up with needs of essential industry under the control of national selective service, a branch of the labor department.

Under present conditions practically all men outside the immediately eligible group—single men and childless widowers from 20 to 40—are uninformed on the possibility of their being called in the event of an extension of the call-up provisions.

DETERMINE STATUS

The new plan, it is understood, provides for pre-classification as to essentiality in civilian occupation and pre-medical examination of men likely to become subject to call.

Such action, it is believed, would relieve uneasiness and uncertainty which now is felt by both workers and employers. From the standpoint of the employer the greatest value would be an advance warning so that a substitute worker could be trained.

Employers are likely to be asked to classify their employees into such groups as dispensable, dispensable on short notice, dispensable on long notice and indispensable.

A Gunn, assistant secretary of the British ministry of labor and national service, who has been loaned to the Canadian government, is expected to have an active part in making Canada's new manpower plan effective.

While preliminary indications of the plan—which now is nearing a completed stage and is expected to be made public within the next two weeks—have centred on civilian manpower it is anticipated that the program will eventually release an increasing number of men for the armed forces.

250,000 REQUIRED

Needs of the armed forces and industry for the last five months of the year are placed by Elliott M. Little, director of national selective service, at 250,000 people.

With only some 60,000 fully employable men shown to be without jobs in the June registration, and many of these presumably since employed, it is obvious that men now in industry and other occupations will have to fill the needs of the armed forces, some 150,000.

A sharp upTrend in the employment of women is under way and it is expected that these will in many cases ultimately replace men.

It is considered likely that with a general scarcity of labor needs there will be a tightening of the policy in granting postponements from compulsory service.

DRAMA OUT

Sub Hunting Just Routine Job for Canadian Pilots

By FRANK LOWE

AN EAST COAST CANADIAN BASE, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Drama is given the go-by when airmen make reports on their flights and fights against U-boats skulking off Canada's east coast.

The pilot of one of the big amphibian bombers operating out of here is FO. A. M. Tingle of Chilliwack, B.C.

Here is how he describes quietly and unemotionally details of a patrol flight to an intelligence officer.

"It was routine, just routine," he says, dismissing so casually a string of flying hours that make the working day of a laborer look like child's play. Eight-hour shifts are just fond memories to the men in the coastal bombers.

ALBERTA OBSERVER

It was the same story when Sgt. Observer Bill Eddles of Calgary made his report. "We didn't see a thing," he said, adding a significant "this time."

A two-masted schooner was their one land fall, the only break in the monotony of a day-long flight.

That, they say, is the tough part of their job, flights stretch out for hours, long monotonous eternities of 60 minutes each when the crew almost prays for action to liven things up. Otherwise they scan the water until their eyes smart and swim. Investigating every wavelet in hopes a U-boat might be there.

Not So Bad

There were 73 strikes in Canada during July, against 54 in June, and only 29 in July of last year.

But the loss of time because of the strikes was less serious than these figures suggest. In July the working days lost numbered 54,402, while in June they were 41,232, and in July of last year 48,850.

This record is far from good, at a time when every lost day in a war or other vital industry is important; and most of the July strikes tied up industries of these classes. But it is not relatively bad. If the interruptions during the latest month reported were far more numerous than a year ago, the loss of time was not much greater.

There should be no strikes—and no lockouts—in wartime. These crude methods are not necessary. They are wasteful to those directly concerned. They hinder the carrying on of war work. They do something to disturb national unity. They make life harder for everybody.

But measured against the number of industries which were not interrupted, and the number of man-days worked, the figures are small. They show that in general the industrial employees of the Dominion are recognizing their responsibilities to the nation, and are making use of the means provided for the peaceful settlement of grievances.

Better Get It Now

In the first half of this year Alberta shipped to Ontario and supplied to the railways more than 103,000 tons more coal than during the first half of last year.

The railways, whose fuel requirements respond directly to the volume of traffic handled, took nearly 18,000 tons more than last year, while shipments to Ontario were up more than 80,000 tons. In June, the last month of record, shipments to that province were six times greater than for June of 1941.

The latter figures are probably even more significant than the comparison suggests. It was about that point in the summer when eastern buyers were told they had better look to Alberta for more of their winter's coal supply than they had ever done before. The June figures indicate that they took the hint, and the movement may be assumed to have been correspondingly heavier during July and August than it was a year ago.

For the Alberta consumer, the moral is plain. He had better get in his winter's supply early. There is a maximum beyond which mine output cannot be suddenly expanded. It is now being sold out the eastern market demanding more, a good time to buy coal is when it can be got.

There is the other consideration also that the more coal the mines can sell outside Alberta the more money they will put in circulation here. Imported coal-money goes just as far as imported wheat-money to make the wheels of business turn.

Why Stalingrad?

A statement has been issued by the Moscow information bureau which says the Axis forces have lost since the beginning of May on the Russian front nearly three-quarters of a million men killed. Details of enemy units destroyed are added, which show that this estimate is not a guess merely, but the result of a compilation of figures from the various battlefields.

In fighting such as has taken place there, the ratio of wounded to killed can scarcely be less than five to one. This supposition is borne out by the fact that in Norway and the Netherlands public buildings have been turned into hospitals to accommodate the overflow from the hospitals in Germany and the satellite states.

On this basis 3,500,000 Axis soldiers at least have been put out of action, temporarily or permanently, by wounds. The total man loss for the summer campaign thus sums up to 4,000,000 or more; half or more than half the first line troops with which Hitler began his thrust to the East. Of those a million may be supposed to have been disabled only temporarily.

The Russian losses have also been heavy, but there is reason to suppose they do not approach these figures, for an attacking force usually suffers more severely than that on the defence.

In any event, the Russian losses do not compensate the Fuehrer for his own vanished divisions; nor Germany for its missing men, and the army of cripples who have returned from another summer's fighting against the Red army which Hitler said last October had been smashed beyond recovery.

The substance of this gory calculation will in one way or another get to the people of the Reich, and to the peoples in countries from which Hitler's forced levies were drawn. They will not be allowed to read the Moscow report; but the train-loads of wounded, and the absence of letters from loved ones at the front, will tell the tale with sufficient clearness.

This perhaps explains why the Nazi generals have been sacrificing men without regard in their attacks on Stalingrad, a place which holds no compensating strategic importance. Hitler must have something to show for the slaughter of the summer—else the forces of discontent, doubt and resentment might sweep through his makeshift empire dangerously.

—V—

There was of course a reason for the decision to extend British control over the whole island of Madagascar, and the fighting that has resulted. The announcement at Washington goes no farther than to say this is necessary for the security of the Allied route to India, the Persian Gulf and Egypt. The truth no doubt is that Vichy has given the Japanese permission to establish submarine and air bases there—as it did in Indo-China.

—V—

Two offensives are now under way in the South Pacific. In New Guinea the Japanese have outflanked the Australians and threaten Port Moresby. But in the Solomons the American troops have captured another island on the way to the enemy base at Buka. This is probably the base from which the Japanese troops in New Guinea are supplied and reinforced, and the approach of the American forces not only threatens the base itself but outflanks the enemy in that island. The "tendencies" of the situation are by no means all on the side of the Japanese.

Rehabilitation of Society Is Our Aim in the War

Job For Legislators Is as Vital as the Job in the Field.

By HAROLD L. WEIR

The Honorable Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Pensions and Health, has formulated an excellent plan for the rehabilitation of members of the armed forces after the war. This plan is no idle dream or collection of promises. It is already on the books. And it is the finest thing of the kind that has appeared in any country.

Harold L. Weir

Under this plan the discharged fighting man will be re-established in society in as secure a position as possible. He will be trained to take up suitable and timely work. In every sense of the word, he will be rehabilitated to take a useful and profitable place in the community.

And the emphasis, throughout the operation of this plan will be placed on his permanent security.

Now this is all highly encouraging. It is no more than common justice. The man who fights for his country deserves the best his country can do for him.

But is it not true that other citizens as well deserve something of their country? What of the pioneers who have grown old and feeble in the promotion of Canada's welfare?

In short, what is to prevent the beneficiaries of Mr. Mackenzie's plan from being applied to every person in Canada?

Why not extend and enlarge this policy from the rehabilitation of returned men only into the rehabilitation of all Canadian society?

Society Is Sick

After all, the most vital positive objective in this war, after the negative objective of crushing the Axis is achieved, is the rehabilitation of society.

That is our aim and purpose. It is the aim and purpose of our allies. It is the spirit of the Atlantic Charter.

For society is sick. Only a sick society would have permitted this war to happen. Only a debilitated social consciousness would have tolerated the abuses that for twenty years retarded our progress.

Thus, when we and our allies say we propose to build a new world (that being the popular phrase at the moment), we mean nothing less than a resolution to rehabilitate society.

It is for this that our soldiers are fighting in the field, our airmen are battling in the sky and our sailors are hazardously plowing the seas.

It seems to me that this war will never be quite won until our legislators and our fighting men unite in a common purpose, until both our military and our legislative efforts are combined to cure the ills of society.

So far, the military campaign towards this end seems to be getting along much better than the legislative campaign towards this end.

The military campaign to rehabilitate society at least has defined its purpose. It knows what it wants.

The legislative and civilian counterpart of the military side of the war is, of course, social security.

And whatever victories our armed forces gain, those victories will be barren, in a positive, constructive sense, unless there is a parallel advance towards social security along the legislative front.

For that is what our fighting men are battling for—the very things that social security and social justice represent.

What they win in the field, our legislators must confirm on our statute books.

Otherwise, it is very easily conceivable that we may find that we, for the armed forces, may be utterly lost by the politicians. In short, a failure to fructify our growing social consciousness in concrete law may utterly throw victory away.

That is why social security and social justice are such vital concerns today. They are wrapped up so intimately with the war effort that the two cannot be separated one from the other.

And legislators who do not understand the present implications of social security, simply do not understand the meaning of the war.

Now Is the Time

It is just as easy to rehabilitate every Canadian as it is to rehabilitate the returned soldier.

It is just as feasible to rehabilitate all society, as it is to rehabilitate any one class in the community.

It is towards this rehabilitation that social security moves.

And now is the time for it. Never in Canada's history was there a more favorable moment for instituting some of the policies of social security in a manner that will implement the efforts of our fighting men in the field.

With every person in Canada employed, the donation of a few cents a week, on the contributary system, would build up funds of millions and millions of dollars to finance an adequate health insurance plan, a complete unemployment insurance plan and a decent retiring allowance of not less than $30 per month for every Canadian at the age of 60 years.

This is the time to do it. This is the time to bring together the social purpose of the legislator and the military purpose of the soldier. This is the time to let our fighting men know that the victories they achieve in the field are being duplicated and implemented in our parliaments.

"Entertaining" in Wartime

Should Social Activities Be Eliminated While War Is On?

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

A number of Edmonton women have written me offering various opinions about wartime entertaining.

Some of them feel that social affairs should be limited strictly to those gatherings which conduct some useful war work.

Others feel social affairs should be kept to a minimum.

Still others are of the opinion that social activity should be absolutely abandoned during the period of the war.

Now, if I may give my opinion, I would say that all of them are wrong.

I believe most women are firmly convinced, by this time, that their energies and abilities belong, first, to their families, and, secondly, to the war effort.

I believe that all realize that they all will have to make a maximum contribution to the winning of the war, if the war is to be won.

The mistake is made in trying to combine social life with this necessity. War work is not a social activity at all. The two are sharply separated.

Thus, when it comes to the problem of wartime entertaining, it only confuses the issue to try to adjust it with or measure it by essential war work.

Relaxation

The prime purpose of social contacts is to refresh and stimulate the mind. If social affairs fail to accomplish this purpose, they are useless and nonsensical, whether it be in wartime or wartime.

By what stretch of the imagination can anyone suppose we need less mental refreshment in war than in peace? It seems to me that intelligent relaxation and the mental stimulus of good talk is a good deal more essential now than it ever was before.

It is vitally important that we keep our minds wholesome and our viewpoints healthy. How better can we do this than by the social and friendly exchange of views and opinions under the guise of what is known as entertaining?

Entertaining by all means. But promote those kinds of entertainment that are refreshing, stimulating and relaxing. All those kinds of functions that merely tickle social vanity and make an excuse for a parade of fancy clothing and fancy food are definitely and absolutely out.

No Waste

There are, of course, a few special rules to be scrupulously observed in wartime entertaining.

Don't, for instance, promote any social function that encourages the consumption of extra and unnecessary food. Entertaining that involves the service of food should be kept on a regular meal basis and not between regular meal times.

Don't enter into any social competition in the matter of fine clothes. Sartorial extravagance is silly at any time. In this war period it is criminal.

Don't serve wasteful kinds of food. Don't try to go your neighbor one better in the matter of fancy sandwiches or cakes or chafing dish specials.

If these few simple rules, and others like them, are faithfully observed, wartime entertaining will be beneficial. It will lift morale and help to keep everyone in best working trim.

Remember, don't waste time or food or money. But remember, too, that nobody can work all the time and that stimulating social contacts, if kept within the bounds of reason, are wholesome and inspiring.

Soap Fragments

An Edmonton woman writes me as follows:

"I have about one hundred pieces of good face soap. How can I form them into large and usable cakes?"

Put them in a can with only a little water, so that in time they will be softened. Heating the water will speed things up. Or make a hard cake, you will need a mold to which pressure can be applied. Failing this, handful of the softened soap may be squeezed and molded between the hands. They will harden as they become dry.

And here are a few other little hints that have been handed to me: Strained honey, mixed with soft butter, makes a delightful topping for cinnamon toast and other hot breads.

Place a folded cloth under the dish which contains food to be beaten. The cloth saves the table and helps to keep the dish steady.

Boil a little vinegar in the skillet before having fried fish. It will make cleaning the pan easier.

To preserve bathing caps and shoes for another season, cover well with talcum powder and pack away. This will prevent rubber from cracking.

Words, Words, Words; a New Book of 'Em

New Democracy Is Terrifying Volume With Medley of Thought Symbols.

By I. N. S. IN THE OTTAWA JOURNAL

A frightening book, 907 pages long, has found its way to this desk, with the following title: A Dictionary of Discriminated Synonyms with Antonyms and Analogous and Contrasted Words.

We should add right away that besides the 907 pages there are so many pages devoted to introductory matter, surveys, histories, analyses, definitions and explanatory notes that their total comes to a respectable figure. Roman numerals we can scarcely decipher. And in front of all that comes a preface and behind it all an appendix.

A synonym, as all good and true men must know, is one of two or more words in the English language which have the same or very nearly the same essential meaning. An antonym is a word which has the opposite meaning to another word. God and right are synonyms; good and bad are antonyms.

However, on the XXXIII, the editors declare that they don't believe their list of synonyms and antonyms would be sufficient without some analogous words and contrasted words thrown in. Analogous words are words closely related in meaning. Contrasted words we'll let them explain this) are "terms sharply differing in meaning from the entry word . . . some are the synonyms of its antonym, but many are opposed to it only in part of their meaning."

The editors also throw in this guiding principle before getting down to work:

"The essential part of this dictionary consists of the synonyms and their discriminations and of the antonyms or the words thus discriminated."

But that guiding principle is no guide to this reader and it is suggested we plunge of our own accord into the santonyms fall where they may.

First Entry

The first entry is abaft, whose synonyms are aft and astern; whose analogous words are after, rear, back, posterior, hind, hinder; whose antonym is afore; whose contrasted words are ahead, forward, before. But, wait—there's more to abaft, aft and astern than just that:

"Abaft (opposed to afore) commonly suggests position relatively near the stern or rear part of the ship; as, his station is abaft the foremast; the waves struck her abaft the beam. Aft (opposed to forward) suggests position actually in that part of the ship in the rear of the midship section; as, they went aft to hoist the mainsail; a cabin aft of the lounge. Astern (opposed to ahead) now chiefly implies position outside and to the rear of a ship; as, the wake astern of a vessel; a brisk breeze astern."

So there you are, you landlubbers; lower away and we'll turn the pages.

Confusing

Abracadabra has for synonyms gibberish, hocus-pocus, mummery; and its analogous words are magic, sorcery, thaumaturgy.

We quickly looked up thaumaturgy to see what on earth it meant and found its synonyms were magic, sorcery, witchcraft, witchery, wizardry, alchemy. No sign of abracadabra, and this is confusing. According to the sunday telling of advice back in the Roman Numeral section we gathered a synonym is a two-way road.

Further, therefore mooly about the whole thing we skipped at once to the Z's, to find that rather than call the author of this book a zany we may term him a fool, jester, clown, antic, buffoon, merry-andrew, pantaloon, harlequin, comedian, comic, stooge.

Thus reinforced for a future occasion we swung back to the A's and noticed the drawing of a hand in the middle of all those words, an ominous sign we fell for immediately. It was under adjure; and said: "Do not confuse adjure with abjure." This is fair enough except that since the words have no possible connection it seemed rather gratuitous (syns: supererogatory, uncalled-for, wanton.)

At Random

Thumbing pages at random these few words caught our attention:

Dipsomaniac: Alcoholic, inebriate, drunkard, sot, soak, tippler, toper, sipper.

Obscurantist: Philistine, barbarian

Rhetorical: grandiloquent, magniloquent, aureate, flowery, euphuistic, bombastic.

Temperance: sobriety, abstinence, teetotalism, total abstinence.

That last one, by the way, seems to have suffered some at common usage. Temperance people not infrequently turn out to be the most intemperate people.

Strange Things

Words are strange things. Think how Mr. John Aylen put it over The Journal on Monday for instance. Last Saturday the Liberal suggested in an editorial that Col. Ralston had gone a bit too far in saying Canadian courage at Dieppe was "matchless". The Journal thought he was overlooking Dunkirk, Crete, Malta and so on. "Superb", said The Journal, but not "matchless".

But it got back to this dickind of eye that can look through a giant law book and find what his opponent will overlook, read his Journal last Monday, including the regular feature "Ottawa in 1917" and drew our attention to the following paragraph: On August 24, 1917.

"The Journal spoke of the 'matchless valor of our troops in the bloody conflict at Lens'."

Looks like two strikes on Col. Ralston and The Journal but a safe hit for Mr. Aylen!

However Mr. Aylen, who has the world lonary—it is really a very useful dictionary for the people that require such information, and its price is unusually reasonable for a work of such proportions. But why we should write all these words about words and why The Journal's editorial on "matchless" appeared almost precisely a quarter of a century after the Lens incident is something we'll think no more about but just put down to pixies (fairies, faeries, elves, sprites, nymphs, dwarfs, goblins, brownies, pucks, shees, leprechauns, banshees).

Some Facts About War Profits

No One Getting Rich Out of War Is Evidence of Figures.

FROM THE WINNIPEG FREE PRESS

The situation regarding the net earnings of companies producing war supplies, in Britain, the United States and Canada, belies completely the suggestion that high profits are being made. A false impression is constantly given by certain people who make irresponsible illusions to such profits.

In Britain, war profits were actually lower in 1941 than in 1939, according to the London Economist, and in the Canadian and United States, a close study made by the National Association of Manufacturers showed that net profits this year will be considerably less than two years ago and very much lower than last year. In Canada, the net profits of 146 companies in 1941 were less than 3 per cent higher than in 1939, according to a survey by the Financial Post. The volume of sales of the Canadian companies was much greater in 1941, and the level of profits in Canada in 1939 was lower than in Britain where defence industries then were very active.

Profits Halved

The Economist shows that gross profits of British companies declined 5.1 per cent between 1939 and 1941. It finds that the 100 per cent excess profits tax has been completely effective, and that net earnings "have been more than halved, as a result of the doubling of the standard income tax between the first quarter of 1938 and the second quarter of 1941." That is to say that profits of British companies have not increased but have been greatly reduced during the war.

In the United States, the National Association of Manufacturers finds than 2,225 corporations earned $1,637,000,000 in 1940, before taxes. In 1941, their gross earnings rose to $2,879,000,000, and for this year they are estimated at $3,500,000,000. But the picture is changed in taxation. Net profits, after taxes, did increase in 1941 from $1,130,000,000 to $1,380,000,000, but, this year, they are estimated to drop to $900,000,000. That means with a much larger volume of business and with their gross profits more than doubled in the last two years, the net profits of those 2,225 companies are lower by $250,000,000. The percentage of every sales dollar going for taxes has increased in the two years from 3.5 to 8.8, while the percentage representing net profits has fallen from 7.8 to 3.8.

Close Check

The increase in gross profits in Canada for 146 companies from 1939 to 1941, was from $252,000,000 to $374,000,000,000 according to the survey by the Financial Post. That was due to the great increase in their production. The rate of increase in gross profits in Canada was considerably lower than the increase of gross profits in the United States, and this is probably due to the close check kept by our finance Department on production costs and to the constant lowering of contract prices for war supplies. For instance, the contract price of the Bren gun has been brought down from $300 to $190.

With the enormous expansion of business of the 146 Canadian companies between 1939 and 1941, their net profits, after taxes, increased from $182,000,000 to $187,000,000. But this year, the excess profits tax is raised from 75 to 100 per cent, though 20 per cent is refundable after the war, as in Britain.

The idea that the companies are making big profits out of the war is entirely fallacious. After paying their taxes, they have little, if any, more profit now than in peace time.

And when the profits are distributed as dividends, the government now takes a larger share than ever. The shareholders are getting, or retaining, less of the profit than before. Those who talk of war profits suggest that the rich are getting richer through war production. They have no finance. The man with a $50,000 income must now pay two-thirds of it in taxes.

Scattered Trade In Winnipeg Pit

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11—(CP)—There were indications of a small export business in Canadian wheat to the United Kingdom on the Winnipeg grain exchange today but there was no confirmation of the report. The October wheat future closed unchanged at 90 cents a bushel.

Only a few scattered mill purchases were made in the wheat pit.

Shippers were taking No. 1 and 2 Northern in the cash wheat market. Spreads were mostly unchanged.

Oats and barley were easier on hedging pressure connected with new crop arrivals. Shippers gave support in oats and barley. Further sales of approximately 200,000 bushels of malting barley to the United States were reported

Country marketings yesterday amounted to 2,120,000 bushels compared to 1,301,000 bushels a year ago. Grain inspections at Winnipeg yesterday totalled 463 cars compared to 792 cars a year ago.

Storms Limit Desert Action

CAIRO, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Sand storms limited activity on the Egyptian battle front yesterday, although British artillery batteries on the southern sector loosed shells against the Axis forces of Field Marshal Edwin Rommel, headquarters announced today.

An Axis merchant ship was exploded and set on fire by a direct hit of a torpedo-carrying aircraft Wednesday night, the communique said, and a scout plane later sighted the vessell ow in the water and apparently sinking.

Harvesting in Western Canada Is Now General

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11.—Harvesting operations have become general over Western Canada during the past week. Threshing is well underway in southern Manitoba but elsewhere there has not been sufficient threshing to determine yields, according to the final crop report of the department of agriculture of the Canadian National Railways.

All references to outturn, however, point to a record crop. Lodging is quite general which makes cutting difficult and will affect yields and grades. Damage from frost which covered most of the northern areas around the 1st of September cannot yet be determined but considerable serious damage is anticipated especially in the northern half of the province of Alberta.

HALF COMPLETED

Warm, dry weather has prevailed in Manitoba with cutting and threshing in high gear in southern districts About 50 per cent of the threshing has now been completed with wheat yields reported ranging from 25 to 45 bushels, barley 50 bushels and oats 60 bushels to the acre. In northern districts of the province about half the crop is cut and very little threshing has been done. Showers have interfered with harvesting in a few districts.

In southern Saskatchewan harvesting is in full swing with wheat cutting about 50 per cent completed. Wet fields and lodged grain are generally reported which will undoubtedly lower crops and reduce yields. Combining has commenced in some districts.

Favorable harvesting weather has prevailed over most of central Saskatchewan. Cutting is in full swing, and some threshing has been done, although wheat is not yet ready for combining.

FROST DAMAGE

Some slight frost damage was reported in a few areas. In northern Saskatchewan good progress has been made in cutting and threshing will commence next week. Practically every district reports lodged grain, and lowering of grades, and yields is predicted.

Late crops will be quite seriously affected by recent frosts.

Dry, warm weather is needed in Alberta to ripen late grain. Wheat cutting has just nicely started. There is very little damage to crops except from lodging. In northern Alberta clearing weather has favored ripening of crops and cutting is becoming general. Heavy frosts around September 1 will affect late maturing wheat, and most of the coarse grain.

WEST CROP HARVEST PROGRESSING APACE

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11. — Although held up in some places by rains, cutting and harvesting of western Canada's grain crop has progressed favorably during the week justy closed, says the Canadian Pacific Railway summary from agents reporting to its agriciultural department.

Approximately 86 per cent of Manitoba's wheat and 83 per cent of oats and barley are cut. In Saskatchewan the percentage of wheat cut is 43 and oats and barley 58. Alberta wheat is 25 per cent cut and oats and barley 42 per cent.

Percentages of threshing in all three provinces are much behind those of last year at the same time, but weather conditions have been more favorable this week and prospects look brighter.

YIELDS HIGH

Grade stands relatively good and yields are high. In the Peace River district little threshing is done yet, but cutting is up to 75% of the entire crop. Threshing has been delayed by adverse weather conditions, and it is still impossible to estimate production.

Picking of Macintosh apples has started in the Kamloops district of British Columbia and will begin soon in the Okanagan Valley. Later varieties of apples show good color with the moderating temperatures and cool nights.

Vegetables are moving in mixed car lots and there is a heavy yield of tomatoes.

Harvesting of tobacco and hop crops in the lower mainland has begun and normal yields are indicated.

Canadian Dollar Hits Low Point On U.S. Market

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(CP)—The Canadian dollar has slipped approximately three per cent in relation to the United States dollar on the "free market" during the past month—a decline attributed in foreign exchange circles here to the fact the summer tourist season has drawn to a close.

Yesterday's quotation at New York banks was a discount of 13 per cent against the Canadian dollar—the lowest figure it has reached since last April 14.

Miners Enlist

SPRINGHILL, N.S., Sept. 11.—(CP)—Since the start of the war, 25 per cent of the coal-miners here have entered the services, it has been estimated. One mine in nearby Joggins has been especially hard-hit, 50 per cent of the workers have enlisted.

Here is What Weather Faces Hitler's Horde

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(BUP)—The following time table of normal Russian weather may shed some light upon Hitler's chances of attaining his goals before the terrible Russian winter sets in:

In North Russia and Karelia, a mean temperature below freezing starts the last week of October, but larger rivers and lakes don't freeze before the end of November.

In the Leningrad area, September is wet, although the latter part of the month may be dry, with light frost in October and freezing temperatures two weeks later than in the north. Snow begins in November.

NICE AUTUMNS

The Moscow region normally has fine autumn weather in September and October after a wet summer. A mean temperature below freezing begins the first week in November. The first snow last year was on Nov. 7, but steady snow is unlikely before the end of November.

In the Kalinin region, it snows after the middle of November, and real winter begins after the first of December.

In the area from Vyazma to Voronezh, real winter begins in mid-December.

It is dry from Stalingrad to Astrakhan (on the Caspian), although there may be some rain now, a little snow any time and hard frost and high winds in December and January.

CAUCASUS DRY

North Caucasus autumns are dry and there is never much hard frost or steady snow. There are cold winds in January and February, but they did not prevent military operations in the Russian civil war.

The Batum region is sub-tropical with heavy winter rains.

There is heavy snow in the Caucasus mountain passes after the middle of October. Weather conditions on the Caspian coast favor military operations the year round. It rarely freezes in Trans-Caucasia.

Today's War Moves

stantial profit at any time in the near future. I say this on the basis of an extensive trip made less than a year ago behind the German lines in the Ukraine, and on the basis of estimates of over-all prospects by both neutral and German experts in Berlin.

ACUTE SHORTAGES

In the Ukraine, there was—and certainly still is—a acute shortage of both agricultural and industrial manpower, and sabotage of both farm and factory machinery was general. In some localities where I talked with Nazi commissars sent over to run the conquered collectives as best they could, and, through interpreters, with Russian peasants, there were primarily only women and children to harvest and sow the hand equipment. The able-bodied men had been removed by tens of thousands from farms and factories when the Russians retreated, or were in the Soviet fighting forces.

Transports, black to the gunwales with both soldiers and workers, took them away from Odessa, for example, a day before the beleaguered city fell. Only small groups of dejected civilians were being led away as prisoners when our party arrived. Industrial machinery at Nikolaiev and other points had been completely sabotaged.

If the Nazis were able to pump great streams of labor onto the black earth of the Ukraine and the oil-soaked Caucasus, both regions would be an exploiter's dream of paradise come true. But, as cited here yesterday, German herself has such a shortage of labor that a bottleneck has developed which, according to late radio reports, had necessitated the calling of an experts' conference in Berlin today to deal with the dilemma, especially mobilization of labor in occupied countries.

MAY TAKE THREE YEARS

Dispatches which I sent from Russia stated the belief that the Germans would not get a sizeable pay-off from the conquered Soviet territories for at least two years; the military censor cut it to "one year," but later I learned that German experts sent over to make factual estimates put it at three years.

Transportation presents another enormous obstacle to exploitation of the conquered regions. German military sources have admitted that the Nazis would have to control the Mediterranean to be able to realize fully on Caucasus oil. Land transportation across Russia at present or in the near future would be wholly inadequate.

Far more serious in any summing-up of the Nazi conquest is the negative factor of what the loss means to the Russians. An authoritative survey from London published today shows that Russia faces her second war winter with at least 40 per cent. of her food-producing areas in German hands. There is some alleviation through British and American supplies, but not enough to stave off the hunger that is bound to come to Russia this winter. Thus far we have no announcement of any Soviet propaganda campaigns to deny the fact.

Dieppe's Beach Forms Landing Ground For Commandos

Here is a view of Dieppe, which will go down in history as the site of a courageous and effective large-scale commando raid led by Canadians. In peace time Dieppe, with its spacious beach, is a summer resort, and in the last war was a convalescent base for the Canadian army. It lies along a one-mile break in steep cliffs that extend for miles on both sides of it. The commando raids, other than at Dieppe itself, would have had to be carried out on the narrow beaches at the base of the cliffs.

Noted Athlete Visits City on Sports Survey

ed in and around the larger centres of Canada.

Up until now sports and recreations have been carried on in the R.C.A.F. under the direction of auxiliary war services for the most part.

"Most of those in charge of sports and recreations in the air force have been doing a fine job, but there has been no one in command, no one person with authority to plan a complete, nation-wide program and thoroughly integrate that program. That is where I come in," Squadron Leader Conacher explained.

The former star athlete plans to visit all western Canada cities on the present fact-finding tour. He will also fly to Alaska and visit Canadian airmen sharing the defence of that important territory with the American forces. Recently he paid a visit to Washington, where he took some time to study the recreational and sports set-up in the United States armed forces.

TO GO OVERSEAS

He expects to go to the British Isles later and organize a sports program for the airmen overseas.

While his hair may be a trifle thinner and his girth just an inch or two greater than of yore, the Big Train of yesteryear is still a mighty vigorous looking person. And he loves his new game. He admits that the strict military niceties of the air force are quite a puzzle at times. For one thing its hard to remember to return salutes.

But he's learning fast and the potentialities of his new job has him really thrilled.

The boys in the air force need sport for their morale. Lionel Conacher is well qualified to organize the sports programs for the student airmen.

For Conacher not only played several games. He starred in several sports.

He was an outstanding star of the gridiron, playing both as an amateur and professional. At hockey he starred with the greatest amateur teams before finishing up a brilliant ice career with the professional clubs of the N.H.L.

BOXING CHAMP

He was Canadian light-heavyweight boxing champion. He was a wrestling star of note. He was a great lacrosse player. Then he has tried his hand at golf, tennis, rowing.

"I'm not much good at tennis and I'm a pretty feeble golfer," he admitted.

But he swims and plays a business-like game of ping pong.

And he's proud of his bridge, but when you come to think of it, try and find someone who doesn't think he's a whizz at the pastime made famous, or diabolical, by Ely Culbertson.

Squadron Leader Conacher filled his pipe thoughtfully and chuckled.

"Speaking of bridge, reminds me of Jack Dempsey. Now there's a guy who really thinks he knows how to play bridge. He can't tell if he has 13 cards in his hand," the R.C.A.F. sports director declared with something like pity in his eyes.

DEMPSEY "REAL GUY"

"But aside from being a horrible bridge player that fellow Dempsey is a real guy," Sydn. Ldr. Conacher continued, as he puffed away on his pipe.

Then the officer told this story:

"I'll never forget the time I boxed three rounds with World's Champion Jack Dempsey in Toronto. I was considered a pretty good fighter myself, so I agreed to take on Dempsey in a three-round exhibition bout.

"We sparred around, tapping each other lightly for a while and then the crowd started to holler for me to 'sock him'. Finally I lashed out and landed one on the Dempsey face. I opened a cut and the champion of the world started to bleed. That was a great mistake, I found out in a few seconds.

"Dempsey's fist started lashing at my face like a long serpent. Every time he connected I would slump down with my knees sagging. So Dempsey put his left hand around my neck and held me up while he pasted me with his other hand. And every time he hit me he would ask: 'Are you all right? Are you all right?' I couldn't answer, so I just had to take it. That guy could really sock, but I asked for it, when I clouted him that one."

CONTINUES TO REMINISCE

Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher fingered a nose that has been broken so often that he has lost count and continued to reminisce.

He recalled his first vivid recollection of the name Edmonton. It was back in the autumn of 1921 when the Eskimos of Edmonton, coached by the late Deacon White, clashed with the Argonauts of Toronto in the dominion rugby football final.

The Esks put up a great fight. In the line they out-played and outfought the mighty Argos and came close to bucking through for a touchdown in the early minutes of the game. Then somebody fumbled on the Esk side. The Argos got possession and from then on the classy, smooth-functioning backfield of the Toronto team made the contest a nightmare for the westerners.

The final score was 23-0, and a fellow named Lionel Conacher scored most of the points, his dazzling broken field running being something new to the Esks.

"I remember Jimmy Enright. He was injured early in the game and then the Esks cracked up pretty badly," the officer said. "Enright was a great player," he added.

And the Big Train gained more knowledge of Edmonton a few years later when he was teamed up with Bullet Joe Simpson on the office of the New York Americans hockey team, of the National Hockey League.

BRILLIANT STAR

Simpson was a brilliant star for the Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Canada Hockey League.

With his brother Charlie Conacher, also a famed puck star with Toronto Maple Leafs, Lionel Conacher visited Edmonton on the far north on a hunting trip in 1935. They went to Great Bear Lake.

"I'll never forget that trip. It was the only time I ever felt sick in an airplane," the Big Train recalled. He had wrenched his knee playing tennis at Fort McMurray, waiting for the weather to clear. On the way back to Edmonton some of the passengers decided to do a little high altitude duck and geese shooting.

The pilot thought it was fun, too. So he dived and zoomed and looped while the passengers blazed away with shotguns from the windows at any ducks or geese that chanced to be flying by.

"I really got sick that time. I would liked to have killed the pilot, but it's a poor place to kill him," observed the officer.

Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher is accompanied on the present tour by Flt. Lt. H. N. Crighton, of the division of physical training at Ottawa headquarters of the R.C.A.F. Flt. Lt. Crighton was also a star rugby football player in 1925-26 and 27. He later refereed in the rugby leagues. Prior to joining the R.C.A.F. 22 months ago Flt. Lt. Crighton was a teacher at Danforth Technical School, Toronto.

TO ATTEND GAME

Sqdn. Ldr. Conacher will attend the Edmonton Junior Rugby League game at Clarke Stadium, that starts at 8:30 Friday.

It is expected he will kick off the ball at the start of the game, which marks the first appearance of the season for No. 3 Manning Depot squad. They will clash with Maple Leafs in a regular league contest.

The Big Train is back in his element again.

10 Calgary Women Invade Labor Field

CALGARY, Sept. 11—(CP)—Calgary women invaded the labor field in force for the first time yesterday when 10 of them began shovelling gravel and moving lumber at the new hangars being built by Waterman & Waterbury, Ltd., for No. 10 Repair Depot, Currie Barracks.

"It's a new experiment and if it works we will be hiring women for other construction projects at Vulcan and elsewhere," the company manager said. It was impossible to find men for the work, he said.

Sentence Robbers

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11 — (CP) — Mike Smirnos, 22, and Walter Skorodensky, 26, pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking into a south side theatre with intent to commit theft last Tuesday, and were sentenced to three and five years respectively, by Magistrate R. B. Graham in police court here yesterday.

Visiting Gunners Pals Of "Red" Dutton's Son

CALGARY, Sept. 11.—(CP)—For two of the five-man bomber crew which visited Calgary yesterday, the stop was more than just another city. It was the home of their flying pal, Sgt. Joe Dutton, son of Mervyn (Red) Dutton of hockey fame, who has been reported missing.

Both Sgt. Don (Four-Gun) Morrison and Sgt. Karl Sveinson had made several flights with Sgt. Dutton, and he was a close friend of Sgt. Morrison.

Morrison and Dutton roomed together, and they kept their kits together. And now Morrison carries the cigarette case of his pal as a lucky charm.

DUTTON'S GUNNER

When Dutton was making his first flights as second pilot of a big Wellington, Morrison was the rear gunner. They made several flights that way.

Then Dutton got "his own" Wellington and made more than 15 flights over enemy territory before he was reported missing June 6.

On six of those flights, Sgt. Sveinson was the ship's foregunner.

"Then I was changed to a wireless operator," Sgt. Sveinson said, "and I was changed to a different plane. Otherwise I would have been with Joe when he made his flight June 6. He is a dandy pilot."

Though dogtired after his strenuous day, Sgt. Morrison found time to visit Mr. and Mrs. Dutton at their home this evening.

"SYNTHETIC" RUBBER?
Goodyear has the "know-how"—based on 15 years' experience

● We, at Goodyear, are fully aware that Canadians are anxious about the rubber situation: Not only are you apprehensive about future tires for yourselves but, like the rest of our people, you are asking, (1) "Will our fighting services continue to be supplied with needed rubber products?" and (2) "Can 'synthetic' rubber be obtained in time and in sufficient quantities?"

Our answer to your first question is . . . Yes! Everything the army, navy and air force need they are getting: Rubber materials of all kinds are flowing and will continue to flow to them in a steady stream.

Our answer to your second question is again . . . Yes! "Synthetic" rubber can and will be made in adequate quantities for all essential needs.

You might ask a third question, "What does Goodyear know about 'synthetic' rubber?" Well, more than fifteen years ago, when the whole world was at peace, we started work on an extensive research program. We knew that "synthetic" rubber could be derived from a wide variety of products, such as coal; grain alcohol, acetylene, petroleum; natural gas and other hydrocarbons and that the processes were many. In all we explored hundreds of different chemical compounds and from the date of our first patent, 1927, to now, we have been granted, or have applied for, sixty-five patents covering the manufacture of "synthetic" rubber.

Out of this work came success . . . Goodyear Chemigum (Pronounced Kem'-ee-gum). This "synthetic" has a globular structure and physical properties very similar to natural rubber. By compounding, Chemigum can be endowed with qualities definitely superior to natural rubber for many purposes. Having achieved this much, Goodyear built the first complete plant on the continent for producing rubber of this type and began the manufacture of Chemigum products for various industrial uses.

There, briefly, is Goodyear's experience in "synthetic" rubber . . . a comprehensive experience in laboratory research, in practical testing and actual manufacture. Today, as an aid to United Nations' governments, all that experience, plus sixty-five important patents, have been pooled with the knowledge and resources of others so that a united effort can be made to achieve quantity production at the earliest possible date.

WHAT ABOUT "SYNTHETIC" TIRES?

Our first "synthetic" tires were made from Chemigum in 1938. These tires actually outperformed, in most respects, tires made from natural rubber. They were standard All-Weather tires and the tests given them were actual and arduous road tests on standard automobiles. Tires made from Chemigum were not made available to the general motoring public for the simple reason that cost; then, was too high: It was seen at that time that cost could be licked only by quantity production; but could be licked when, and if, the need arose. Today, we can say that not only does Goodyear know how to make "synthetic" rubber, not only does Goodyear know how to use that material in tires, but Goodyear is actively working for actual quantity production and can see the time; not too far distant, when "synthetic" tires will be produced at or near the costs of those made from natural rubber. Please do not misunderstand us . . . there is no apparent prospect of "synthetic" rubber tires, or any other kind, being available for the duration, except tires for war and essential civilian use. War demands are too great for that . . . and ever-growing:

Then, the situation today is this: The big job has been done—because Goodyear and others were farsighted. That big job was finding and knowing how to use a brand-new material. If, when there was no need to do so, research had not been started, and had not been successful, today we would have been facing fifteen years of research instead of having it behind us:

We give you this information so that Canadians will know that Goodyear; the leader in the rubber industry; is wide awake; straining every resource and making every effort to ensure an adequate supply of "synthetic" rubber in this country.

The War Today

By JOHN COLLINGWOOD READE

Allied Air Force Dispersal Essential During Defensive

While the tenacious and incredibly brave Russians are spilling their blood at the rate of 7,000 men per day to break the machinery and sap the strength of the German Army, Allied air power is steadily expanding the scope of its operations. Proponents of pure air strategy in Britain have given their opinion that a second front in the air could assure victory in a matter of months if available aircraft were only concentrated on the job of smashing Germany.

The members of this school, however, have expressed themselves no less forcibly to argue that the war could be lost in the same period if the United Nations continue to dissipate their air strength over a number of fronts.

It is saaid that we are fighting as Hitler wants us to fight, spreading both our military and air strength over vast areas which are difficult of access, while German forces moving swiftly on internal lines of communication can bring greater strength to bear at any one point. In other words, at any point in our long system of defenses, the enemy can "get there fastest with the mostest men."

There is, of course, another side to the argument, and it has to do with timing and economics. The United Nations draw a great deal of their oil from the Anglo-Persian oil fields.

DISPERSAL IS ESSENTIAL

They have trade with Turkey, and obligations to the Turkish people, upon whom they rely to act as a buffer between Germany and her dearest ambitions. The Middle East, besides being a reservoir of oil, is the bridge between the Occident and the Orient, two focal points of Axis power. We must therefore, hold the Middle East at least until we can be absolutely sure of striking a swift and mortal blow at the German enemy from the West.

That is why we have large armies there. Having large armies there, we must both supply them and give them air support. The same applies to India. To some extent, this is playing into the enemy's hand, or would be if he could take full advantage of it, because an immense quantity of shipping is kept out of service for months at a time plowing through thousands of miles of sea to deliver one cargo. Moreover, aircraft which, were they all concentrated in Britain, would appear to be sufficient to pulverize Germany, must be scattered throughout Egypt and Malta, Palestine and Syria, the Northwest Frontier of India, the eastern approaches to India, Ceylon and South Africa.

Were all the shipping, all the air strength, all the naval and military strength that are now scattered all over the world to be concentrated at one or two points, the Germans might be successfully assaulted on their home ground.

PROBLEM OF REGROUPING

The trouble is that it would take us much longer to regroup our strength than it would take the enemy to redispose his forces. And in the meantime he could deliver paralyzing blows. He could certainly possess himself of an abundance of food and fuel; he could close all the supply routes to Russia; and he could probably hamstring the Russian army by depriving it of its western system of communications before he need bother much about preparing to meet an Allied onslaught at the threatened points.

It is natural to be impatient, and public criticism acts as a necessary stimulus to the government. But dealing with the Germans is like dealing with a pool of quicksilver. Before trying to put the mercury back in the bottle, it must first be satisfactorily imprisoned, or it breaks out in all directions. We are still trying to keep the enemy contained and prevent him overrunning all the places we shall need later, while the Russians are grinding him down and exhausting his strength.

Disarming the enemy is still the ultimate purpose of war, and its only purpose. We take up arms in the hope of disarming our adversaries and being in a position to dictate the conditions of life under which they shall live, or else we take up arms to prevent some one else doing the same thing to us.

WHAT HELPING GREECE COST

The shortest route to peace is the best route. Quixotism has no place in war. In a military sense, it would have been far better had we left the Greeks unaided. Their fate would have been the same. All we did was delay it and perhaps make it more unpleasant for them later.

Had we stuck to our primary military purposes, we could have held Tripoli, thus frustrating forever the Axis plan to develop a pincer attack against Egypt and Suez. It could have been done cheaply then, and much shipping space and air strength could have been conserved for offensive action elsewhere.

It is a proper, generous impulse which makes us anxious now to help the Russians in a tangible way. But past experience shows that we should finish up one job before starting on another, unless we have ample strength to undertake both with assurance of success.

It is unfortunate that Allied air strength must be dissipated as a matter of precaution instead of in accordance with an offensive design. But the war is still in a transitory stage. We are able to take some offensive action, but we are still governed primarily by defensive considerations. Even the offensive action we take is protective in purpose.

Attack may be the best defence, but when it is made with this in mind it is not a genuine offensive.

RUSSIANS BEAR BURDEN NOW

The Russian people are carrying a terrible burden and are performing an invaluable service. This they must do to the limit of their ability. There is no controversy about such a statement. Planning a war is like designing a bridge. Stresses and strains must be calculated, and the burden loaded most heavily on the toughest members. In due course, the burden will pass from the Russians and be loaded on to us. That time is not yet. The Russians have been preparing ever since 1926, and we have been preparing as we fought.

It is now quite evident that we are not ready to attack in Western Europe. The Dieppe raid and what have been followed up before this were we in a position to do so. As it is, the Dieppe raid gave the enemy just as much information as it gained for us. We learned something of the enemy's dispositions, material and defensive technique, but we also taught him what weaknesses he had and gave him time to repair them. We left some of our invasion equipment behind for him to study, prisoners for him to pump and have given him plenty of time to repair his deficiencies and prepare to cope with our methods.

ALL OF ONE COMPANY

The raid certainly must have convinced our own general staffs that a new technique was required and a lot more special equipment, including the large-scale use of air-borne troops. Were that not the case, they surely would not have allowed so much time to elapse before launching another raid.

If we are not ready to attack in the west, then it is only proper that we move all the aircraft we can spare into the Middle East and India and smash the Afrika Korps, regain control of the Mediterranean and prevent the Japanese from entering India. This in itself precludes massive operations against Europe, but does not betray Russia.

Russia is not a separate entity. She is a member of the United Nations. For Britain and the United States to commit suicide on her behalf would certainly be a gracious gesture in the grand manner, and it might bring a certain amount of temporary relief. But in the end it would leave Russia to face Germany unaided. The collapse of Anglo-American armed power would be just as dangerous to Russia as a Russian collapse would be to us, for we are all of one company.

RAIDS DO MUCH DAMAGE

It would be a mistake, nevertheless, to assume that Anglo-American power is causing the enemy no inconvenience. The five and six hundred plane raids which are now almost a nightly feature are certainly doing an immense amount of damage and undermining the ability of German industry to maintain the Axis armies in the field. Anglo-American power in the Middle East is not only denying Rommel a victory in Egypt, but is confronting him with the alternative of victory or disaster. Allied power is also supporting Russia's southern flank below the Caucasus and keeping two supply routes open by which Russia's limitless manpower can be converted into armed strength through the delivery of weapons.

The accompanying map illustrates in a general way the dispersal of Allied air strength at critical points throughout the world, and shows the relative concentration of the enemy's air strength at bases which can readily be supplied with fuel and maintenance facilities. Northern Scotland route will also be noted that the enemy could regroup his air power with ease and speed.

Will Punt at Adolf Now

Canada's outstanding athlete of 1940, Leading Aircraftsman "Tony" Golab, formerly of Windsor, Ont., starts his career as a fighter pilot of the Royal Canadian Air Force by aiming a lusty kick at Adolf. Holding the ball is LAC. Mike Klemenko, who with Golab was a member of last year's Ottawa Rough Riders football team, and who received his wings at the same time. Klimenko is a native of Cheswick, Penna., and is remaining in the R.C.A.F.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

SQUADRON Leader Lionel Conacher, athletic director of the R.C.A.F., is in Edmonton today and he brings a novel conception of a sports program for his branch of Canada's fighting forces. In fact his idea is unique so far as the armed services of Canada and the United States are concerned.

Conacher proposes to find out just what sports the airmen prefer and then give them plenty of the games they select.

All the other services are working on the general theory that a sport program should be designed to make major contributions to the fighting efficiency of the men. Conacher says he doesn't give a hoot what sports the men prefer —they'll get just what they ask for.

In other words, the Big Train is apparently sold on the idea of sport and athletics being a purely recreational angle of air force life.

You can take the stand of course that by providing mental relaxation, you keep the airmen from getting stale and therefore contribute directly to maintaining their fighting efficiency.

The Conacher conception is certainly a far cry from say the basic sport conceptions of the U.S. Navy's pre-flight schools. These schools design their sport programs to contribute to the major objective of making the boys the fittest, toughest fighting men that modern knowledge can turn out.

The comparative values of these two opposing views can be figured out only by experienced observers watching the two sets of fliers in action under similar conditions. So far such comparisons have not been possible on any worthwhile scale.

RACING TENDENCIES

THIS is the time of year when the results of the season's racing are boiled down and the residue examined. Two interesting facts come from eastern Canada. One is that Connaught, at Ottawa, was the most successful meet of the Quebec circuit and Connaught used twilight bills. Mount Royal track in Montreal tried dropping the daily double bet and replacing it with two quinellas. The quinellas proved more popular than the daily double.

The explanation apparently lies in the fact that the quinella is easier to win than a double. It doesn't pay as much money, but it makes more people happy.

The success of the Connaught meet is self-explanatory. This country is a natural for twilight racing, especially out here around Edmonton. Not only are the evenings long, but there simply are not enough people who can get off work to attend afternoon gallopping parties.

Some observers in eastern Canada figure that the new income taxes will curtail the operation of big stables. With income rigidly limited, the big dough boys won't have what it takes to keep up an expensive race stable.

The clipping of these gold-plated outfits needn't worry anyone. The prairie circuit has operated successfully for years with mighty few owners who were bothered by income taxes. The higher ante for war purses will simply give racing back again to the little guy with two or three horses who just manages to make a living—if his nags come through.

Zivic Easily Outclasses Red Cochrane

Four Ounces Cost Fritzie Welter Title

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Fritzie Zivic Wednesday night gave Red Cochrane the beating he'd been promising him for a year and easily won a 10-round decision over the welterweight champion in Madison Square Garden in a bout that was a non-title tussle by a mere quarter of a pound. Zivic weighed 147½; Cochrane 146.

Finally getting the revenge for which he's been "eating his heart out" ever since the Jersey redhead took the 147-pound crown from him a year ago last July, Fritzie handed Red a gaudy boxing lesson, puffed his face up with knife-like punches and won going away in a rough and tumble brawl that had a near-full house hopping to its feet time after time.

On the Associated Press score card, the flat-nosed Pittsburgh beauty won eight rounds against two for Freddie the Red, who came out of the navy to take on this bout for the benefit of the U.S.O. and goes from here directly to active sea duty.

Two rounds were taken away from Cochrane by Referee Arthur Donovan for fouls, but one of these Fritzie won by a mile, anyway.

Maintaining his record of being one of the Garden's best "meal tickets"—although Cochrane undoubtedly helped, too—Fritzie drew a crowd of 13,259 customers. They contributed to a gross gate of $30,817.

Cochrane, who sprang the fistic upset of 1942 by copping the title from Zivic the last time, relied almost entirely on a wild-swinging body attack last night. It did some good through the first five rounds, but from the sixth to the finish, Zivic banged away at Freddie's head almost at will.

In the end, it was Cochrane's style of fighting that helped Zivic most. Freddie bored in close in every round, and Fritzie discovered early he had all the best of the infighting. He tried to meet it with work. So he went to work all the way and did most of his damage with short chopping punches that bounced Freddie's head around anytime the two got at close range.

There was more than a little bit of extra-curricular clouting, too. Cochrane used his head almost as freely as his fists, and Fritzie countered with an occasional thrust of the finger, or a backhand once in a while, and now and then showed his "artistry" with neat exhibitions of hitting and holding. It was plenty of fun for everyone outside the ring.

The fifth was by far Fritzie's best round. He opened up with both hands to the head, landed a smashing hook in close that made the champion wince and brought red from his nose and, at the bell, had Freddie somewhat dazed. Donovan "took" this round away from Cochrane, but it was about as much a gift for Zivic as a breath of air. The other round Donovan gave to Fritzie was the seventh, for a low blow Cochrane threw.

Fritzie's mouth was cut on the inside as early as the first round, but he more than made up for this by raising a "mouse" under Cochrane's left eye in the third, using "puffing up" both Freddie's eyes in the ninth.

The fight was an over-weight affair, but only for the fact that Zivic drank a glass of water before yesterday's noon weighin was he a quarter of a pound over the 147-pound welterweight maximum. Since Cochrane also was under the legal limit, Fritzie might have had to claim the crown he lost last year and for which he was promised a return shot if he officially scaled less than the 147 maximum.

ZIVIC TO MEET HENRY ARMSTRONG

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Immediately after former welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic outpointed the title-holder, Red Cochrane, last night Promoter Mike Jacobs announced he plans to match Zivic with another ex-147-pound boss, Henry Armstrong, probably November 6.

It was from Armstrong that Zivic won the welterweight title October 4, 1940. They fought a return match in January, 1941, before a crowd of more than 23,000—the record turnout for a fight in Madison Square Garden. On that occasion, Zivic made his first triumph stick.

Both of these fights were among the fiercest ever put on in the Garden, and, since Armstrong's recent comeback campaign on the west coast has been so successful, Promoter Jacobs decided to pair the two again in the Garden.

Ace Adams Ties Pitching Record

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Ace Adams, the Giants' relief expert, tied the National League record for pitching the most games in one season when he hurled the ninth inning against the Cardinals Thursday. It was Adams' 58th appearance of the season, all in relief roles. The record was set by Christy Mathewson of the Giants in 1908 and equalled by Hugh Mulcahy of the Phils in 1937.

Adams previously had broken the Montague record of 53 police court here on charges con-

Lionel Conacher to "Kick Off" Tonight

"Amateurs" will Tangle for World's Heavyweight Title

By WHITNEY MARLIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—We never thought we'd live to see the day when a couple of amateurs would be fighting for the world's heavyweight championship, but here are Joe Louis and Billy Conn booked to meet October 12 with Mike Jacobs doing the promoting for the United States government.

An amateur is supposed to be a fellow who performs without remuneration and purely for the fun of it. Neither Louis nor Conn will get a red cent, and as for the enjoyment, Conn, at least, would rather fight than eat.

Anyway, it's a grand gesture on the part of both boys, and particularly Louis, as he's the guy who has everything to lose. Conn, although not getting paid in cash has the chance to win the title and the accompanying prestige. He's already tried and failed once.

CONN SAYS JOE "A DEAD PIGEON"

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Private Billy Conn, starting workouts for his October 12 title bout with heavyweight champion Joe Louis, said Thursday Louis was "a dead pigeon" already.

Conn, who was knocked out in his first match with Louis last year, sized up his prospects this way:

"I think Joe's ready to be taken by the first good man who comes along. None of them—not even the best—goes on forever. In my book he's a dead pigeon."

Westlawn Bowling Club is holding an open mixed tournament on Saturday commencing at 3 o'clock. Rink or individual entries accepted. Phone 81859 or 27381.

"Iscor" is South Africa's giant wartime steel works at Pretoria.

"Big Train" as he is more familiarly known from one end of Canada to the other, is in the city in his official capacity and particularly with a view to formulating plans for an R.C.A.F. hockey team for Edmonton.

Conacher is undoubtedly one of the greatest athletes this country ever produced, excelling especially in football as a member of the famous Toronto Argonauts and in pro hockey in the National League. He played in big time hockey for 12 years—1925 to 1937.

The famous athlete's appearance at Clarke Stadium tonight will be particularly appropriate, for the Manning Depot's junior grid squad will be making its debut this evening.

Coach FO. John (Jake) Jamieson is reported to have a well groomed aggregation ready to throw against Tommy Hays' Maple Leafs, winners of the Alberta junior title last year and with a victory to their credit in their only start so far this season. They defeated the E.A.C. team last Monday night in the league opener.

Ned Wiginton has been named referee for the game tonight and John Easton is umpire with Steve Olander head linesman.

Reg. (Pep) Moon will handle the play by play description over the loud speaker.

No Steeplechases For Britain Now

LONDON, Sept. 11. — (CP) — Steeplechases were banned by the ministry of home security as a measure for further economy in feed and to eliminate unnecessary travel to meets. It meant there will be no Grand National or other smaller steeplechase meets this year.

The order did not apply to flat racing since none is held from November until March of each year.

From the transportation angle, curtailing non-war traffic during the winter leaves the roads free for the shipping of coal. In addition, Britain is nearing its production peak and transportation demands are the heaviest ever.

Ontario Union Adds Two Teams To Original Four

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 11.—(CP)—The Ontario Rugby Football Union's senior division was converted from a four-team group into a six-team league at a meeting of the O.R.F.U. executive and team representatives here Wednesday night.

Two Toronto teams, Balmy Beach and the R.C.A.F., made application for a berth and their applications were accepted. The four originals were Hamilton Wild Cats, Toronto Oakwoods, H.M.C.S. York and the Kitchener-Waterloo Panthers.

Opening games will be played Sept. 26 and with games Thanksgiving Day, Oct. 12, the schedule will be completed by Nov. 22.

Provided Canadian playdowns are to be held, a "sudden death" game between the teams finishing first and second in the schedule will determine this year's senior O.R.F.U. champions. In the event no playdowns are to be held outside the O.R.F.U., the first and second clubs will play home and home games for the Ontario Union championship.

R.C.A.F. Team for Edmonton

Senior Hockey League For Services in Manitoba

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Plans to inaugurate a senior hockey league in Manitoba between members of the three armed forces were under discussion Thursday by members of the Manitoba Amateur Hockey Association.

Officials said prospects of such a league were reviewed when they held a two-hour conference with Honorary Squadron Leader Conacher, athletic director of the Royal Canadian Air Force, who said the R.C.A.F. plans to operate teams in Halifax, Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg, Regina, Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

Conacher said there were "100 top grade hockey players serving with the R.C.A.F. in Canada," and he could guarantee a strong team for the proposed Winnipeg league. He said it was not the intention of the Air Force to select a group of players and "pack" a team in any city.

Several former National Hockey League stars and members of other senior amateur clubs in Canada now are stationed in Winnipeg with the R.C.A.F. and the Navy.

Among outstanding hockey stars now in the Air Force here are Wally Stanowski and Pete Langelle of Toronto Maple Leafs, Bill Juzda, New York Rangers and Andy Branigan of Brooklyn Americans.

M.A.H.A. officials said that in the event there were not enough players available in the Army the association had two alternatives, to form an all-star team of available Army men and surplus players from the R.C.A.F. and Navy or to muster an all-star civilian lineup.

City Title Series

I. T. S. Softball Squad Beats Moose by Score 10-9

No. 4 I. T. S. took the first round in the battle for the senior men's city softball title when they defeated the Moose 10-9 in the opening game of the best of three series at Kingsway Park on Thursday night.

The Airmen had an eight run lead going into the ninth, but the city league champions turned on the heat for seven counters before they could be checked.

Leo Cherot was starting chucker for the Moose, but he was relieved by Stan Devicq in the third, five runs being already in and another potential three on the paths.

Devicq struck out a pair, gave no walks and allowed a quartet of hits. Scottie Cameron for I.T.S. struck out seven and walked two. Scottie gave way to Martinson with two out in the ninth. The change worked for the batter flew out to left field. There was nobody on at the time.

Bill Sasyn was top batter with three for four, including a double and a triple.

Moose collected a pair of homers, Jim Braull's coming in the fourth and being the first run for his team and Leo Cherot walloped out the other in the ninth, one being on bake at the time.

I.T.S. counted a pair of runs in the opening frame. Cameron walked, but Russ Grant forced him at second. Harry Holman singled, but Grant was forced at third when "Gimpey" Stulberg forced him. Gil Foika's two-base hit scored a brace.

In the second Ken Lebbert drew a pass and Cameron hit safely. Grant also walked and Holman's single brought in one run. A walk to Stulberg forced in a second counter and the Foika hit through second for two more. Ray Hoshowsky's bingle brought in the sixth run.

Moose got two in the fourth and their seven in the ninth fell one short.

Next game in the play-offs is Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at Kingsway park.

Sport Shorts From Britain

LONDON, Sept. 11. — (CP) — The King's Big Game partially redeemed his complete failure in the Derby and established himself as the best 10-furlong racer in Britain with a victory in the Champion Stakes at Newmarket. It marked His Majesty's eighth racing triumph of the season.

The handsome three-year-old colt, with Gordon Richards as usual riding in the royal silks, moved up a half-mile from the finish to whip such outstanding racers as Lord Rosebery's filly Afterthought and Mrs. A. E. Allnatt's Ujiji. Ujiji also ran third in the Derby where Big Game finished a bad sixth over the longer distance.

Another Lord Rosebery entry, Hyperides, which ran second in the Derby, was beaten soundly, running fourth in the five-horse event and showing no power after the first half-mile.

Another Richards' winner was Lady Sybil, considered the best two-year-old this season, who took the Rous Stakes. She is a daughter of Nearco whose two-year-old offspring has had outstanding success this season.

Newmarket's second August meeting concluded with another Lord Rosebery color-bearer, the filly Ribbon, running away with the Middle Park Stakes, most important two-year-old race of the season. The Aga Khan's Nasrullah, an outstanding colt, lost out by a neck over the six-furlong route.

Six-year-old Linklater took honors as champion sprinter of the season in winning the Nunthorpe Stakes by nearly two lengths.

More than 30 thoroughbreds from the stud of the late Lord Glanely, millionaire Welsh sportsman who was killed in an air raid, were sold for approximately $240,000 during the Newmarket meet. They were put up for sale by Maj. A. E. Allnatt, who previously purchased the string from the Glanely estate.

Highest price at the sale was paid by Sir Eric Ohlson. He purchased the three-year-old filly Perfect Peace for $26,000. Maj. Allnatt, practically a newcomer to racing, has retained Colombo, a famous stallion whose present-day value is estimated at nearly $70,000, and 42 brood mares and 26 foals which are to be sold later.

Mention of Lord Glanely brings to mind the ups and downs of his racing career, on which he spent a fortune.

For instance, he purchased Grand Parade as a foal for $2,000 and Grand Parade ended up by winning the Derby for him. On the other hand he gave the equivalent of nearly $70,000 for Blue Ensign — a record price for a yearling—and the animal was a hopeless failure.

Eddie Arcaro Cops Three In Row

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Jockey Eddie Arcaro scored a consecutive triple at Aqueduct Thursday, climaxing his performance by riding Mrs. Dinglin Stock Farm's Barrancosa to victory in the featured Brookdale Nymph Purse for class C fillies and matrons.

Barrancosa, an Argentine-bred seven-year-old, scored by three lengths over the favorite, Mrs. Dodge Sloan's Bonnet Ann, who saved second money by a length over Mrs. Silkirk's Belle d'Arnhour.

A $6.70 for $2 shot, Barrancosa covered a mile and one-sixteenth of sloppy going in 1:44 3-5.

After finishing out of the money in the first race and second in the following event, Arcaro guided Wuskenin to victory in the fourth and scored with Bardia in the fifth.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

BROOKLYN, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The beleaguered Brooklyn Dodgers had their minds so full of the series starting Monday with St. Louis Cardinals that they overlooked the necessity of beating Chicago Cubs yesterday.

Consequently the Cubs romped to a 10-2 decision that was as costly as it was humiliating since the Cards captured a 5-1 verdict over New York Giants and moved within two games of the National League pennant.

REDS GET PITCHING

BOSTON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds were given two splendid pitching performances by Paul Derringer and Ray Starr Thursday but they needed only one victory in their final appearances of the season against Boston Braves. Derringer was credited with a 6-2 decision in the opener but Starr's two hitter was wasted because the Reds had to have the services of their ace hurler at the end of the ninth to board a train for Philadelphia.

Birds Reported Plentiful

Duck Shooting Season Will Open Next Monday, Sept. 14

The annual trek of Alberta's duck hunters to their favorite spots for that long-looked-for first morning's shoot is just about ready to begin, for the season opens at exactly one-half hour before sunrise, next Monday morning, Sept. 14.

As a matter of fact, the boys (and girls too for that matter) who live north of the Athabasca have already had a chance to limber up their guns, for the season in that area began Sept. 7.

South of the Athabasca, however, the annual barrage cannot be thrown up until Monday morning, but that is one day earlier than last year.

Ducks, particularly in the north half of the province, are reported to be more plentiful than ever. The survey of Ducks Unlimited shows that there are more birds in the Canadian breeding ground than at any time for the past 15 years.

UPLAND BIRDS PLENTIFUL

Heavy precipitation this year did however slightly reduce the upland game crop over the west as a whole, but in this part of the province Hungarian partridges, prairie chickens and pheasants increased.

In Alberta the limit for ducks is 12 in any day and 100 in a season. For geese it is five in a day and 25 for the season.

The season for Hungarians will open Oct. 1 and it has been extended one month to the end of December for Zone 1, which embraces the Edmonton district. The bag limit has been increased from 15 to 20 a day.

In the southern zone, that is from Red Deer south the season is the same as last year, viz October and November and bag limit 15.

CHICKEN SEASON

Prairie chicken season for the area south of the Athabasca is from Oct. 1 to Nov. 1.

Bag limit for cock pheasants in the Edmonton district which is included in Zone 1, has been increased from three to five daily.

Changes in the big game regulations have been made in some cases. The elk hunting area in the north is now extended to include that district between the Brazeau and North Saskatchewan rivers. It is now defined as the Pemina-Brazeau area and the shooting season is Oct. 1 to Dec. 12.

Dodgers Open Two-Game Series With Cards Today

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers and St. Louis Cardinals, opening a two-game series with each other today at Brooklyn, now are separated by only two games and anything can happen in the National League.

The Dodgers dropped a 16-2 decision to Chicago Cubs yesterday while looking like sleepwalkers and the Cardinals conquered New York Giants 5-1 on four-hit pitching by Howie Pollet who now have a shutout except for Mel Ott's 27th homer.

As a result the Cardinals have it within their power in Brooklyn by winning the pair of games today and tomorrow.

In the American League New York Yankees were shut out 9-0 at St. Louis while Boston Red Sox were losing a 14 verdict to Detroit Tigers, leaving the margin between first and second place unchanged at 18 games although New York now needs to win only four, or Boston to lose four, for the Yankees to clinch the pennant.

The standings:

'Paddy' Griffin New Candidate In By-Election

ing the name of a candidate before the meeting.

It was also argued that it was too late to put up a candidate, with Saturday the deadline for filing nomination papers. The fact that a returned soldier with a distinguished war record is already in the field was also named as a good a reason for not running a candidate.

But after some spirited "urging" by a few aggressive males, who received powerful and eloquent support from some of the ladies present, the meeting voted overwhelmingly to place a candidate in the field, who would run as a soldiers' candidate in the election.

In a show of hands only four signified they were opposed "to the advisability" of placing a candidate in the field.

The nomination of Mr. Griffin, made by W. Davies, and seconded by Floyd D. Pearse, was made unanimous by the meeting when a vote was called by the chair.

There were no other nominations.

"PADDY" HESITANT

Even "Paddy" Griffin was hesitant about accepting the nomination, despite the enthusiasm of the meeting. Mr. Griffin said there were a few things that made him think deeply about the advisability of his running. In the first place he feared the meeting was not truly representative of war veterans in the city. Then there was the fact that a returned man had already taken the field.

But in spite of these expressed misgivings, Mr. Griffin later announced that he would accept the nomination.

He said that fully 75 per cent of veterans of the last war have sons or close relatives in the armed forces.

"These are entitled to representation and should have a candidate in the field. And any party man is whipped into line by the party," Mr. Griffin declared.

Closing his speech of acceptance in his usual vigorous style, the soldiers' candidate declared:

"Win or lose, you will always find me right down here (at the Legion). I'll be at the hospitals as before, I'll be visiting sick friends and at the graves of the veterans who have passed away."

Despite the objections raised earlier in the meeting the general feeling that finally triumphed was that veterans have waited too long as it is to elect soldiers' representatives to the legislative halls.

URGE SOLDIERS' CANDIDATE

Urging strongly that a soldier's candidate be placed in the field, J. Phizackerlie advised the veterans not to worry too much about the prospect of their candidate meeting with defeat.

"The defeated members of the political parties get good jobs, such as judgships, so let's get 'Paddy' a better job if he's beaten.

Mr. Phizackerlie contended that if 75 per cent of the wives and sweethearts of men serving in the forces support a soldiers' candidate it would be possible for him to defeat any machine or combination in the field.

"With all due respect to the war veteran candidate running on the Liberal ticket," declared Mr. Phizackerlie, "if he's under the Liberal whip he'll never help us very much."

SEE GOOD SHOWING

Mr. Tanner said there might be many objections to placing a soldiers' candidate in the field at such a late date but he believed that such a candidate would make a good showing notwithstanding. He said he desired to make it plain that he had no authority to speak for the Canadian Legion and was present entirely in his own private capacity.

Mr. Tanner declared that he believed that the young soldiers of the present day have a far different outlook than the soldiers returning from the last war.

He did not think they would be satisfied with the deal the veterans of the last war obtained.

"Five years ago we would not have allowed our son of 19 to handle our car. Such a valuable machine could not be risked in the hands of boys of 19," Mr. Tanner said. "Now the British government places machines worth $100,000 or more in the hands of these boys and has found they are able to accept the responsibility."

Mrs. A. L. Mackay, representing the War Widows association felt that soldiers are handicapped in not having a representative in the legislature. She thought efforts should be made to interest war auxiliaries in the election of a soldiers' candidate.

NO POLITICAL TIES

J. C. Macdonald, president of the New Veterans' branch of the Canadian Legion said he felt that a man should be elected who would be responsible to soldiers and veterans only and not to any political party.

Speaking against the proposal to run a candidate, S. C. S. Kerr, K.C., reminded those present that it is impossible for a man to sit in the legislature and not take part in politics because politics are the business of the legislature, he claimed.

Mr. Kerr also contended that a soldier's candidate, if nominated, would be opposing a war veteran with a distinguished record in Major Nelles V. Buchanan, M.C. The meeting was also not representative of city war veterans. Mr Kerr said, although he was a great personal admirer of Paddy Griffin.

J. E. Knott and Ed. Poole both opposed nomination of a candidate on the grounds that it was too late to organize a successful campaign and war veterans in general would suffer if a soldiers' candidate were to suffer a heavy defeat.

Paddy Griffin was born in Ireland, but came to Canada early in life. He enlisted in 1916 at Winnipeg and served with the railway troops in France.

An amazing thing about his career as a soldier is the fact he served at the front with the sight of only one eye.

CAME HERE IN 1927

Coming to Edmonton from Winnipeg in 1927, Mr. Griffin early took a keen interest in veterans' welfare work. He was a vice president of the Ex-servicemen's Association and has been a member of the executive of the Canadian Legion ever since 1934; he was appointed Legion welfare officer in 1934. He is also an executive member of the Edmonton Trades and Labor council.

The soldiers' candidate is married and has two children. He lives with his family at 10465 83 avenue.

Power Reports Air Operations For Past Week

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP)—Air Minister Power last night issued a communique stating that Royal Canadian Air Force bomber squadrons formed part of strong forces of bomber command of the Royal Air Force which carried out three night raids on targets in Germany during the week ending yesterday.

The targets were Bremen, Duisburg and elsewhere in the Rhur, Frankfurt and the Rhineland.

The communique was issued through R.C.A.F. headquarters here and described as "the first of weekly summaries of the activities of R.C.A.F. squadrons stationed in Great Britain."

The communique follows:

During the week ending noon Thursday Sept. 10, 1942, Canadian squadrons stationed in Great Britain carried out the following operations:

THREE NIGHT RAIDS

R.C.A.F. bomber squadrons formed part of strong forces of bomber command which carried out three night raids on Germany. The targets attacked were Bremen, Duisburg and elsewhere in the Rhur, Frankfurt and the Rhineland.

Fighter-bombers carried out intruder operations over occupied territory in the course of which freight trains in the north of France were attacked.

Canadian fighter squadrons acted as part of the fighter escort to United States army air force Flying Fortresses in various daylight attacks on the dock area at Le Havre, the railway centre at Rouen, an airframe factory at Meaulte, near Albert, and two raids on objectives at Rotterdam including the Schiedam shipyards. Our fighters also carried out numerous offensive and defensive patrols.

ON CONVOY DUTY

Throughout the week Canadian squadrons of coastal command have been engaged on convoy and escort duties, enemy shipping in the channel was bombed and, in an attack on a convoy off the Dutch coast, a direct hit was obtained on the largest vessel. This ship was set afire and left burning furiously.

Calgary Welcomes Visiting Air Crew

CALGARY, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Five Canadian airmen—Johnny, Siggy, Art, Four Guns and Karl—who have carried destruction to Germany 23 times in three months, dropped in to Calgary yesterday, and thousands of Calgarians turned out to accord them a cheering "thank" you."

The lads arrived by plane at No. 3 S.F.T.S. from Edmonton at noon, and packed a luncheon, a civic reception, two march pasts, a "sparks" parade and a party into one afternoon and evening. They are leaving at 7.45 a.m. Friday by plane for Lethbridge.

Just a little more than a week ago the quintette, along with the rest of the "Moose" squadron helped blitz Saarbrucken. Less than a day later they were back in Canada—"to bring home to you how many Canadians are over there and how much they are doing," as "Johnny" put it.

"Johnny" is Pilot Officer Johnny B. Higham, D.F.C. 22, of Assiniboia, Sask. He is the skipper of the crew who were flying their third plane the night they socked Saarbucken.

British Cabinet Holds Session on India Situation

By NOLAN NORGAARD

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The British cabinet met in a special session late last night for what political circles called "important discussions on the Indian situation," after Prime Minister Churchill had rejected publicly any immediate compromise settlement and accused the All-India Congress party of attempting an open revolution possibly aided by Japanese fifth columnists.

The ministers met after some Conservative members in the House of Commons had tabled a motion approving Mr. Churchill's statement—a move which automatically ruled out any discussion of Indian developments at the next sitting of parliament.

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP)—Canadians have the choice of paying a higher price for temporarily larger supplies of beef or keeping down their consumption with the knowledge their self-denial will result in relative abundance next year, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday.

Street Railway Shows Gain in Eight Months Period

Increase 21.5 Per Cent Causes Officials See Transportation Problem

Traffic on Edmonton's street railway system for the eight months ended Aug. 31, 1942, totalled 13,298,941 passengers, compared with 10,942,306 for the same period last year, an increase of 2,356,635, or a gain of 21.5 per cent.

The continued monthly increase in traffic is causing grave concern to civic officials, and plans are now being formulated for the setting up of a committee to discuss the staggering of hours with institutions and business firms employing large bodies of workers.

Indicative of the rapid growth in street railway patronage is the increase recorded during August this year. In that month 1,813,056 passengers were carried on the system, compared with 1,178,487 last year, an increase of 434,569, or a gain of 36.8 per cent.

"If this increase is maintained during the fall and winter months a very serious transportation situation will develop in Edmonton," Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent, stated Friday, "that can only be overcome through the wholehearted co-operation of all employers."

START IS MADE

A start in staggering of hours has been made by the civic administration, and on Monday next civic employees will start work at 8:30 a.m. instead of 9 a.m. as formerly, and will quit at 4:30 p.m. "The effect of this will be watched closely, and may prove a useful guide to the proposed committee's deliberations," Mr. Ferrier said.

Mayor John W. Fry disclosed that George S. Gray, Ottawa, Dominion transit controller, would be in Edmonton within the next week when the whole question of Edmonton's transportation problem would be reviewed.

GAIN RECORDED

THE QUESTION

Will Rommel throw the entire German army in Africa into a desperate effort to close the second prong of the pincers on the Middle East?

ALD. SIDNEY PARSONS: Rommel does not appear to have had much success in his attempts to throw back the Allied line in his renewed attack on Egypt, and there is no reason to believe that he will be able to break through to the Suez against the strong reinforcements that have arrived in Egypt. My guess is that he will play the desperate game and throw all his forces into the fight regardless of cost.

WILLIAM MORROW, caretaker: Hitler needs cotton, needs it desperately. If he could conquer Egypt he will not only get the cotton, but also rich by-products of cottonseed oil, cotton cakes for feed, corn, wheat, sugar and other materials. The Germans will wage desperate war to gain Egypt, but I am confident they will not succeed.

BILL FRASER, bookkeeper: Stalemate in Egypt for Rommel would be a defeat. He must conquer, and I can see some of the bloodiest fighting in the war as he attempts to wrest control of the Middle East from the Allies. I expect to see Rommel soundly defeated and his armies rendered ineffective for months.

McCauley School Boys Doing Bit to Help in Harvest Work

They'll Stook Grain on Saturday

Doing their bit with a will in helping to harvest Alberta's bumper crop, 25 young boys, pupils at McCauley school here, will stook 60 acres of wheat on the farm of James A. Bentley, North Edmonton, Saturday, it was reported Friday by the extension branch of the provincial department of agriculture.

This co-operative enterprise was organized by N. M. Bentley, district agriculturist for West Edmonton (incidentally, he is not related to Farmer Bentley), and Reg. T. Rose, secretary-manager of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

The pupils will be in charge of their teacher, A. V. Cameron.

Fifty cents an acre is the rate which will be paid for the stooking. Students are planning to take their own lunches and hot drinks will be provided by the farmer.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

The provincial department of education has given high school students permission to obtain leave of absence from school for a limited period to enable them to do harvest work in view of the shortage of farm labor. Many students have taken advantage of this opportunity.

Arrangements have been made with teachers in Alberta schools to give such students a review course on their return to classes covering lessons they missed while away from school.

Getting Around with Jack DeLong

Riding in an army jeep may not be much fun when the jeep is under fire on the battlefield, but if we ever have to take a ride in one under such circumstances, we'll pick Pte. Roy E. Rickstrew for the driver.

Pte. Rickstrew is in the U.S. Army Air Force and it would seem that being an airman is a first class experience for improving one's operation of an earth-borne vehicle. At any rate we'll take our oath that Pte. Rickstrew could take that jeep through a knothole without scraping a flake of the greenish battle camouflage from the machine.

Now the reason for being so high on the driving capabilities of one Pte. Rickstrew is that we had a ride with his jeep during the big parade for the five Canuck air heroes Wednesday.

Lucien Roy, the most determined camera "fiend" in captivity, who has been grinding out sensational news happenings for Associated Screen News for Lo these many summers and autumns, was able to secure the jeep and driver to take shots of the big parade.

A jeep, it seems, is simply ideal for setting up the big tripod cam-

Credit Union Officer Loses His Life Trying to Rescue Records

An unique report of the heroism displayed by an official of the Hawaiian Air Depot Federal Credit Union at Hickman Field, Hawaii, when Japs launched their fateful attack on that air base December 7 last is published in a pamphlet received in Edmonton recently by Charles D. Denney, supervisor of credit unions for the provincial government.

The report received from Mr. Denney states:

"It would seem a little out of the bounds of possibility that anyone would give his life for his Credit Union. Yet on December 7, 1941, P. E. Eldred, the former treasurer of the Hawaiian Air Depot Federal Credit Union at Hickam Field did make the supreme sacrifice for his credit union.

"It is an amazing fact that during the treacherous attack by the Japanese Mr. Eldred, who lived near the field, made a desperate attempt to reach the credit union office in one of the hangars so that he might remove the records. While he was running towards the hangar the Japanese machine bullets riddled his body.

"The inspiring example of this member has stirred credit union members in Hawaii profoundly. Though the records of the union were almost completely destroyed, including the members' passbooks which had been left with the treasurer on Dec. 6, the officers and members in the following 30 days reconstructed practically from memory over 400 accounts in the credit union.

"The Federal Credit Union representative reports that everywhere throughout the islands there is a sort of spiritual awakening to the full nature of the privileges and the responsibilities of credit union membership.

"In Hawaii there is no question about the importance of credit union service; in times of war as well as in times of peace the members are determined that this war shall be won and that their credit unions shall make a real contribution to the victory."

There were 52 pairs in the contest—the former record was 44 pairs. But this made little difference to last year's winners, Mrs. Mae P. Rosen and Mrs. Erwin J. Seligman of New York. At the end of the three sessions of play, it was found that they had successfully defended their title, leading the strongest women's field ever assembled.

Mrs. Rosen plays more rubber bridge than duplicate, and her rubber bridge tactics often win her a top score, as it did on this board. Mrs. Rosen and Mrs. Seligman were the only pair to reach five diamonds.

Others who bid game tried three no trump and were set by the spade opening. In match point play, a double of West's three-spade bid looks attractive, but Mrs. Rosen decided that the chance for a minor game was too good to give up for a possible penalty.

Good Resolution — Budget Expenses

IN 1942—PLAN YOUR SPENDING

So many bills! How can you get out of the red, have the things you honed to have this year? Budgeting's the answer.

But, you object, that will mean pinching pennies. MORE things to give up! Not at all. An old-fashioned idea—that budgets tell what you can't have. These days your budget invites: "Come, decide what you want most. Let's plan your spending so you can have it."

So, today, take stock. Estimate your outgo by listing expenses like rent, insurance, clothing, food.

Comparing your own expenses with those of people on similar incomes, you may discover what items are too high. Rent perhaps is costing much more than 20 per cent of your income.

And amazing to see how much money has just leaked away! You could have bought that new furniture or clothing twice over.

When you plan a use for every dollar, leaks are automatically guarded against. And if you buy at sales, order groceries in large size packages—your dollars buy more.

Our 32-page booklet explains budgeting for all incomes, tells how to apportion your money. Includes buying pointers, has ruled pages for year's entries.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "How To Budget and Buy For Better Living" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, 60 Front Street West, Toronto, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

HORN OF PLENTY FOR FESTIVE THANKSGIVING TABLE

September days send thoughts speeding Thanksgiving-wards and many hostesses are planning large or small dinner parties with families or friends to mark the festive October event. Here is an idea for table decoration for far-looking hostesses. A cornucopia, traditional symbol of plenty, is made of wicker, but in addition to fruit, chrysanthemum brim over in gala array. Tiny cornucopia corsages of orange and white bouvardia, bittersweet are offset by tiny sprays of sun-ripened wheat, forming ideal place markers.

Your Baby And Mine

By MILDRED MEYER ELDRED
By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Every mother may as well understand that both threats and rewards are unwise methods of attaining good behavior. Yet mothers act as if they believed in them implicitly. Let the child make a motion to act and the threatening mother is ready with her warnings. "If you step out of the yard you can't go to Auntie's this afternoon." "Don't you take any candy, if you do you'll spoil your supper. Well, then just one piece and no more or I'll make you play in the house."

What child doesn't discover very soon that most of these threats never materialize. They work at first with tiny children who believe what their mothers tell them. They work—if they are severe enough—with timid children who fear physical punishment. They become decreasingly effective because children discover they are seldom more than windy nothings. The bold child does as he pleases, sure that what his mother threatens will never come to pass. The more timid child develops craftiness in an endeavor to escape the punishments supposedly to be meted out to him.

The mothers of such children complain bitterly that their children won't pay any attention to them and their threats increase accordingly, with the same old wilful disregard of them.

Bribes work no better. A child should learn to be good because goodness will profit him as well as his family. If he is "sold" on goodness because of the reward attached he becomes purely materialistic.

"What do I get if I go to the drug store for you?" he wants to know. "I don't want to wash the dishes. But, of course, if I can go to the movie . . ."

Bribes make a little bargainer of the child and he offers good conduct for a rapidly increasing price.

How can we convince a child of the desirability of good conduct if we neither bribe nor threaten him?

First, we can tell him persistently why such and such conduct is desirable, personally as well as socially. Second, we can show him a daily example of the right conduct ourselves, with explanations, if necessary. Third, we can heap light good conduct by our approval or even some reward after it has taken place.

This sort of training takes time. It allows for mistakes. It may not be as emotionally satisfying to the parent as her bribes and threats. But it does give the child an honest conception of good conduct which has few material rewards. But in the end, the child sees that he is happier, others are happier and that good conduct does carry its own reward.

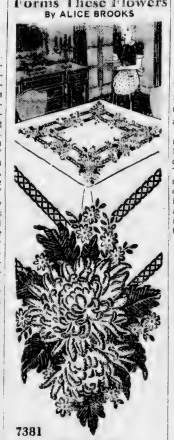

Our leaflet, "Bribes for Good Behavior," discusses some of the reasons why bribes are unsatisfactory. It may be had by sending a 3-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Why Is It Men Often Kill-Joys in Family?

Some Consider It Their Privilege To Take That Role; In These Trying Times Husbands Should Help To Make Home Cheerful

One of the things that women bitterly resent—and Heaven knows you can't blame them for getting peeved over it—is that they are held entirely responsible for making a happy home and keeping up the family morale. Wives are adjured always to meet their husbands with a glad sweet smile no matter whether they have neuralgia in their face or not.

They are told they must be gay and amusing and make the domestic atmosphere so hilarious their husbands and children would rather stay at home than go to a night-club, even when they have spent the whole day cooking, washing and taking care of the baby and have had no more exciting adventures than ordering the groceries or complaining to the butcher boy about how the price of meat has gone up. And, above all, they are warned that it is their bounden duty to keep themselves slim and young and glamorous and look like a million dollars in a $1.98 Bungalow apron out of the bargain basement shop.

But nobody says a word about it being a man's duty to make a happy home. That job is wished off on the wife and she is expected to mom's polite it. The husband feels that for him to be a little ray of sunshine in the house was not specified in his part of the marriage contract and that he has done his full duty by his family when he feeds and clothes them, and pays for his wife's beauty treatments and having the children's adenoids out and their teeth straightened.

DUMPING GROUND

Worse still many men regard their homes as a dumping ground for all their troubles and nerves and temper and their wives as stooges to whom they can say all of the mean things they have wanted to say all day to their clients, or customers, or bosses. The minute they enter the door the temperature in the house drops to zero and the storm signals go up; the children hush their prattle, and the cat flies for the cellar, and the poor wife rushes to the kitchen to hurry up the dinner for she knows that only food will even temporarily stop the mouth of the growler.

CHEER HUSBANDS

How men manage to acquire the privilege to bring kill-joys in their home while women are lambasted if they don't keep everything pepped up and put on a continuous entertaining and amusing act, is one of the mysteries of domestic life that no one can explain. It is just one of those things. Just now we are being presented with an interesting example of it.

For everywhere, in the newspapers, on the radio, in the pulpits women are being exhorted to cheer up their husbands during these war times. Keep smiling, they are told; make your house bright and cheerful; pick up funny stories to tell your husband when he comes home at night; don't let him see that you are downhearted. Buck him up with your optimism. Bite your tongue out rather than tell him of your fears and anxieties about your boy at the front. If you have any tears to shed do your weeping in secret.

Life is hard on men now. Your husband's nerves are shot to pieces with anxiety about Johnny at the front, about his business and about you and the little children. All day he has to listen to the croakings of pessimists until the last bit of hope and encouragement is sapped with in him. So when he comes home turn on the lights, put on a pretty dress, cook some dish he likes for dinner. Laugh; be gay. Tell him a funny story and make him forget his troubles.

WHAT ABOUT THE MEN?

Fine. Nobody will deny that it is good advice but what about the husbands doing a little of this cheerio stuff? What about its being their duty to cheer up their wives and do something to dispel the gloom that has settled on so many homes and made them nothing more than a wailing wall? Surely, what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander.

Surely at a time like this women need comforting and cheering up more than men do. The trouble with a woman who spends her days in her own house with no occupation except her housework is that she has too much time to think. Too much time to brood. Too much time to fear. While she is cooking, or washing, or ironing, only her hands are busy with that task. Her thoughts are travelling with her boy, magnifying his every hardship and danger.

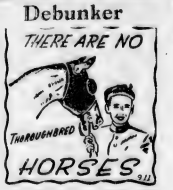

She needs a husband who will brace up her weakness with his strength, who will breathe fresh hope into her faltering soul, who will give her out of his own courage the bravery to fight her battle and take whatever comes without whining. She needs a husband whose coming home at night will be like turning on all the lights in a dark place and it will make her feel, for the moment at least, that all is right with the world and God is still in His heaven.

If men need cheering up now, the women at home who wait, need it more.

THERE ARE NO

Although we call horses thoroughbreds, there really are no such animals in the possession of man today. They are all mixtures of various breeds, but they may legally be registered as "thoroughbreds" in America and many other countries if their pedigrees contain five uncontaminated crosses. Some pedigreed horses contain twenty to twenty-five purebred generations—but, strictly speaking, even this does not make the horse 100 per cent thoroughbred.

Student Days to be Serious Ones As University of Alberta Opens

By MARY BARBARA MASON

WITH autumn painting the trees scarlet and yellow, and the Saskatchewan river valley boasting the University colors of evergreen and gold, commencement of the University of Alberta term is close at hand. From all parts of the province, from cities, towns and hamlets, will come undergraduate students eager to begin, or to complete their university careers.

To the university will come this fall, about 400 new students, members of that much-talked-of freshman class. For them, college dates, student "bull sessions", study and recreation hours will be new and wonderful experiences. Their first days at varsity will be pleasant indeed and they will plunge into the whirl of introductory social events eager to lose the "greenness" for which a freshman class is always famous.

MANY IN ACTIVE SERVICE

This year more than ever before, varsity will be different. For hundreds of graduate and undergraduate students a line from the varsity song "We will fight for thee, and cheer to ever keep thine honor dear", has become a motto, an actuality. Hundreds are fighting in His Majesty's services. And so with her sons and daughters alike fighting or working in war industries, the University prepares to turn out more engineers, more doctors, more dentists and teachers to become cogs in the wheel of Victory.

Unlike former years, students entering in two weeks will find classes already organized and many students in the accelerated medicine and dentistry courses going about their work unconcernedly. For these students so-called "Christmas holidays" have just finished

14,000 Claims Wheat Acreage Bonuses Filed

Fourteen thousand claims for 1942 wheat acreage reduction bonuses already have been filed at the office here, and they are coming in at the rate of a thousand a day, W. C. Barrie, Alberta director of the wheat acreage reduction plan, stated Friday.

Bonus payments began the first week in October, and will continue until all eligible claims have been paid off. Farmers are warned, however, that there are only four more days in which to present their claims.

Grass and rye acreage reduction claims are also being received and paid as rapidly as possible. Of the two thousand claims of these bonuses that have been filed, about half have been prepared for payment. The remaining half is in the office being corrected for payment.

Claims are approved and audited in the local office, and then the warrants are issued from Regina.

Separate Schools' Pupils Increase

Although Edmonton public schools have shown a marked decrease in enrollment this year, A. A. O'Brien, secretary of the separate school board, reports an increase in private and separate schools in the city.

On the opening day, 2,760 students were registered in these schools, which is 20 more than on the opening day last year. Of this number, 349 are enrolled in high school, and 2,411 in the elementary grades.

Refuse Request For Extension City Milkshed

Request of the Edmonton Consumers' League that the city milkshed be extended to avert a threatened shortage of milk was turned down by the city council's bylaws committee at a meeting held Thursday afternoon at the city block.

Also rejected by the committee was a resolution by Ald. Sidney Bowcott that the Board of Public Utilities be asked to increase the number of licenses to supply milk to Edmonton by 10 per cent.

MAINTAIN REVIEW

The committee decided to instruct the city commissioners that the milk supply of Edmonton be kept under review and that the matter be again referred to the city council when "developments warrant."

The Consumers' League spokesman, Raymond E. Shaul, submitted that in event a threatened shortage of milk and to assure an adequate supply of milk to Edmonton the milkshed should be extended. It was suggested that the milkshed radius be set at 50 miles instead of the 15-mile limit now in operation. It was contended also that this extension of the shed would result in cheaper milk than city consumers.

Dr. G. M. Little, medical health officer, said there was no immediate danger of a milk shortage, and that the potential supply was adequate to meet the growing needs of the city. He said the "real" and supply to Edmonton was unequalled on the continent.

He said that, in his opinion, the extension of the shed would result in increased costs, as it would be necessary to extend the inspection services. Cost of these services would have to be met, either through taxation or increased cost of milk, he said.

He expressed the opinion also that the longer haul would result in a lowering of the quality of the milk coming into the shed.

COULD MEET SHORTAGE

Dr. Little said that if necessary the milk supply could be increased by including cream shippers in the shed. He was of the opinion that sufficient milk could be obtained from these shippers to meet any alleged threatened shortage.

R. H. M. Bailey, representing the milk producers said that milk prices had been stabilized by the War Prices and Trade Board and that producers in milk sheds had been subsidized by the board to maintain that level.

He said that a milkshed of 15 mile radius was considered the ideal setup for a safe milk supply. He added that there was danger of a present shortage and that potential supply would take care of the city's expanding needs.

The city commissioners reported that A. E. Ottewell, secretary for the Board of Public Utilities Commissioners, had expressed the opinion that Edmonton consumers at much milk as any other city per head. He further stated that Edmonton consumers paid definitely higher than Winnipeg and would be higher than Calgary, except for legislation that city to troops stationed there.

IN HANDS OF BOARD

Mr. Neal also stated, the commissioners' report continued, that the whole milkshed throughout Canada is in the hands of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and any order made has to be approved by Donald Gordon, who has just ordered a Dominion-wide subsidy of 25 cents per 100 pounds, as the ceiling price of 12 cents per quart has been reached in the Edmonton area.

The report further quoted Mr Neal as saying that if any milk shortage developed, all the Board of Utilities Commissioners have to do on complaint being made to them, is to go to the cream shippers and have them ship milk to Edmonton.

Mr. Neal stated that in Edmonton at present there are signs of overproduction of milk.

Former Telegraph Employee Arrested

Allan McKeigan, a youth formerly employed at a city telegraph office, was arrested by R.C.M.P. at Leduc Thursday night, and charged with breaking and entering.

At 6:30 p.m. Thursday, John Lavallee, 9537 108 avenue, reported to city police the theft of his bicycle from the C.N.R. Telegraph offices.

Later in the evening R.C.M.P. at Leduc arrested McKeigan and laid the charge. He was riding the stolen bicycle at the time of his arrest.

Getting Around

era that Mr. Roy uses in his business.

Now the Jeep was the ordinary standard jeep, a cute little-like affair that certainly isn't any toy. But the driver was anything but ordinary.

Mr. Roy would drive any ordinary driver nuts. When he has to get a certain shot of a certain scene at a certain spot it's really a case of when you gotta go you gotta go and that's all there is to it.

Well, you all know what 101 street and Jasper avenue was like at the time of the parade.

There were jam-packed thousands on the sidewalks and out along the street car lines.

Said Mr. Roy to Driver Pte. Rickstrew:

"Drive right along the south side street car line. That's a good spot to get some swell shots."

"But there's a street car coming! You are too close! He'll hit us!" exclaimed the breathless Daniel Campbell, publicity director for the Province of Alberta, and director extraordinary of motion picture filming and jeep driving.

"We're as safe as a church. We have a good quarter of an inch clearance," came the calm, quiet assurance from Jeep Driver Pte. Rickstrew.

"Sorry but I confess I am of little faith," declared the conductor of this column, as he vaulted over the side of the jeep to the safety of the pavement on the opposite side of the tracks. The streetcar was approaching at fully 40 miles an hour.

But Pte. Rickstrew was right. The tram roared past with driver Rickstrew nonchalantly puffing at a cigarette.

And that was just the start of some real fancy jeep driving and jeep manipulation. The jeep chugged down the wrong side of the street, with all aboard grinning like Kids on the merry-go-round on the cops. Then the Jeep tooted and hooted its way through a solid mass of humanity to take a shortcut to its destination. But not before Pte. Rickstrew had obligingly halted for a moment at a soft drink stand, where the perspiring camera crew quenched their collective thirsts.

Rickstrew and Roy are a team that would take some stopping.

Prime Minister Quotes Coast Poet in Address

OTTAWA, Sept. 11.—(CP)—The words of a young Canadian author, Miss Audrey Alexandra Brown, were quoted by Prime Minister Mackenzie King in a nation-wide radio address last night as a clear-cut definition of the real issues of the war.

He quoted: "Certainly, brutality and force are not new among men. It has always been true that, as the psalms have it, the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty." Men who are little more than savages can be expected to behave as beasts. But never before in history has a nominally civilized, a nominally Christian nation deliberately made the profession 'evil, be thou my god.'

"This war is unlike all other wars, for the deformed monstrosities that sheltered in darkness have crawled out of that darkness and openly challenged the world for the possession of its soul. They no longer fight under cover, they flaunt in steel for Germany to win this war would not mean merely a redrawing of boundaries or a shift in sovereignty. It would mean the decimation of the free spirit of man."

Miss Brown is a native of Nanaimo, B.C., and now lives in Victoria. A descendant of the first member of Nanaimo's oldest pioneer family. She wrote her first poem at the age of six and through the ensuing years continued to write, first gaining recognition when her work was brought to the attention of Dr. Pelham Edgar of Victoria College, Toronto. It was he who brought the attention of a publishing firm her work.

The work she is most noted for is a volume of poems called "A Dryad of Nanaimo," published in 1931. It was republished in 1934 with additional poems.

She was the winner of the first Canadian Women's Press Club memorial award and medal.

Other works by Miss Brown are "Diana", "The Reveille", a book of poems, "The Tree of Ressurrection," and a book of prose, "The Call of a Nation."

Premier King quoted from her works once before when he spoke at a dinner in the house of commons on July 24, 1942.

University Students To Combine Study, War Work This Term

and they have commenced their second term.

Formal activities for this year are bound to be curtailed and less extravagant. Such limitations, however, do not mean that the new students will not be properly introduced to varsity life. Many informal parties and get-to-gethers have already been planned along simple but hospitable lines.

CO-EDS WAR WORK

Co-eds this year will be required to do 40-50 hours of one form or another of war work. Organized last year through the Waunelta Society, every co-ed at the university did war work voluntarily. They could take their choice of several kinds of work, knitting marching and army and navy signalling, canteen work, first aid and the like. This year, on a vote of the entire co-ed body at the end of last term, every co-ed will be required to do a certain number of hours every week in order to qualify for credits in her university courses. For the men, work with the C.O.T.C. and Auxiliary Battalion will occupy much of their spare time.

Changes are bound to come to the university, but the Freshman Introduction Committee under the direction of Blair Fulton, of Edmonton, is busy planning an attractive program of events to introduce the new students to the university and the university to the students.

STUDENTS' COUNCIL

With registration just two weeks away, members of the Students' Council, the governing body in student affairs, will begin to function shortly. Officers are Lloyd Grisdale, president, and Doris Thompson, "first lady" of the executive.

Women's sports will be directed by Kay Lind and Roma Ballhorn; men's sports by Robert Freeze, Calgary, president, and Robert Schrader, secretary. Stuart Purvis is president of the Literary Society, and Leonard Loveseth, George Hardy, James Murphy and John O'Connor are faculty representatives.

Robert Black is secretary and Louis Lebel is treasurer of the Students' Council.

WAUNEITA SOCIETY

President of the Waunelta Society this year is Beth Kerr of Camrose who, with her executive, Lola MacQueen, vice-president, Judith Demetrovits, secretary - treasurer, Mary Lou Smith, Calgary, and Audrey McPherson, class representatives, is busy arranging the colorful Freshette Initiation ceremony for new women students.

The first days of Varsity will be busy ones for the Gateway staff, this year headed by Frank Meston, editor-in-chief. President of the House Economics Club is Ruth McCuaig, and president of the Engineering Students' Society, Byron Anderson, are busy with affairs for their respective clubs.

Sugar Beet Crop Above 1941 Yield

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11.—(CP)—The Manitoba Sugar Company yesterday estimated the 1942 beet sugar crop would be not less than 30,000,000 pounds and likely to be nearer 33,000,000—from 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 pounds in excess of the amount manufactured from the 1941 crop. The Manitoba government in its sixth crop report of the year estimated the sugar beet crop at 124,000 tons.

China Has Enough Soldiers For Five Years More of War

CHUNGKING, China, Sept. 11.—(AP)—A Chinese government spokesman said today that "China has enough soldiers for five more years of war" if necessary without sacrificing the supply of agricultural and industrial labor.

He said that more than 1,000,000 men had been mobilized since 1936 under the Chinese conscription law, while the same number had volunteered for service.

Herridge Asks Roosevelt For Allied Leader

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP)—Declaring the United Nations could not win this war until the English-speaking people united under one leader, Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister at Washington, in an address delivered to a Kiwanis Club luncheon here today, said that leader should be President Roosevelt.

Mr. Herridge, speaking "as a Canadian and a British subject," said that Prime Minister Churchill, representing the British Empire, should nominate Mr. Roosevelt for the leadership and that the American president should have dictatorial powers and a great general staff, half British, half American, to advise him. Canadians should demand that Mr. Churchill take such a step.

"PURGE WEAKNESS"

"Now this war can be won," Mr. Herridge said. "But we must go at it in a different way. We must purge democracy of its peace-time weaknesses. We must build the English-speaking people into one great engine of destruction. For that purpose we must have one leader for the English-speaking people. That leader must have the power of a dictator."

Contending that the people of English-speaking democracy had clearer minds, stronger bodies, and sloutier hearts than the Germans or the Japs, Mr. Herridge said they also had greater natural resources and greater industrial capacity than Fascism. In only one way were English speaking democratic peoples not better than the Axis and that was leadership. "Democracy has no real leadership," he said.

against transmitting some Axis radio rumors on grounds of violating military security regulations.

SAME AS NAZIS USED

Important Allied officials privately have emphasized the wisdom of avoiding such speculation.

These steps, experienced observers feel, have taken on at least some of the characteristics of the preparations with which the Nazis themselves cloaked the preliminaries of their lightning strokes in half-a-dozen sectors of Europe.

Perhaps, I should emphasize that the new regulations and official guidance are strictly limited to military requirements but in any event they begin to give the impression they mean business—and soon.

It is no coincidence that public speculation at the moment is not focussed on any one particular invasion spot.

KEEP HITLER GUESSING

That is part of the strategy of keeping Hitler guessing.

It should be recalled that there have been enough proposals detailed for a second front to keep the Fuehrer confused for an indefinite period of time.

But it is emphasized by officials that the public, particularly in North America, may have acquired too easily the impression that the second front means the French coast.

Without drawing on any source but public statements, it can be said that the French coast is only one of half a dozen or more logical points for attacking the Axis—Norway, the low countries, Denmark, Italy, the west and north coasts of Africa, to mention only a few.

This variety of choices gives the Allied side ample space for manoeuvre and confronts the Germans with the ever present possibility that they will concentrate their defensive preparations in the wrong spot.

AXIS CONFUSED

That the Axis actually is confused by Allied tactics is shown by repeated feelers, put out by the German and Italian radio, attempting to get some clue as to what is afoot and particularly concerning where the half-million Americans announced as already overseas are concentrated.

On that count, however, it should be noted that many more Americans must be sent overseas before the success on a second front somewhere in Europe or Africa can be guaranteed.

It is probably no coincidence that the press campaign in Britain for a second front which was waned vigorously for many weeks now has virtually disappeared. The unanimity with which the London newspapers have dropped the subject peculiarly could have been achieved only through official guidance.

There is naturally no clue as to when the Allies expect to be ready for a second front. But official policy makes it clear that there is determination to strike at Germany as directly and as quickly as possible.

No British Protest To Eire Premier Over Armed Raids

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP)—The House of Commons was informed today that Great Britain had not protested to Prime Minister Eamon De Valera of Eire over armed raids into Northern Ireland by members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

It was explained the Eire government "clearly have their own difficulties." The explanation came from Paul Emrys-Evans, undersecretary for dominion affairs, in response to a question.

Armed With Dirks and Knuckle-Dusters, They're Back From Dieppe

Britain's commandos know all the tricks of rough, tough and "sudden death" fighting with victory for the man who gets in the first blow. The commando at Left carries a dagger, knuckle dusters and a lifebelt. Centre, the commando carries a length of rope which can be useful in many ways, and the picture at Right shows only the commando's most effective weapon in fighting where silence is at a premium—his dagger, conveniently located in his right leg.

Hitler Renews Demand to Use French Fleet

LONDON, Sept. 11 — (CP) — Hitler, seeking to bolster his coastal defences since the Canadian-led large-scale raid on Dieppe, is making renewed demands for control of the French fleet, the Press Association reported yesterday.

The agency said that some quarters have asserted that Hitler put his new demands in the form of a personal message to Marshal Petain. So anxious is Hitler to get control of the French navy, reported the Press Association, that he "is prepared to see Petain personally so that he may bully the aged Marshal into submission to the German wishes."

WANTS CARGO SHIPS

The news agency, quoting information from Washington, said Germany has ordered Vichy to hand over 130,000 tons of French merchant shipping to repair her Mediterranean losses. The Nazis also were said to be applying pressure to Vichy to supply Marshal Erwin Rommel with food from French North Africa.

In return, Hitler is said to have offered the release of more French prisoners of war and the transfer of Bordeaux to Vichy's nominal control.

Gigantic Nazi Army is Held At Stalingrad

"Fight to the last, but keep Stalingrad."

The demand that the Volga river bastion be held at all costs recalled two orders given by Premier Stalin during his civil war defence of the same city in 1918:

1—"No retreat."

2—"Death to traitors."

(The Russian feat in holding the Germans from Stalingrad for 17 days after the Von Bock pincers closed upon its approaches is reminiscent of the 27-day defence of Sevastopol against a Nazi offensive which finally overwhelmed that Soviet Black Sea naval base in the Crimea last July 4.

(Stalingrad, however, has none of the mountainous natural barriers such as screened Sevastopol and probably has fewer fixed heavy fortifications. How many men Marshal Semyon Timoshenko has assigned to guard it is a question, but field dispatches have repeatedly reported them outnumbered.

(The Von Bock striking forces, estimated as high as 500,000 troops, apparently total twice those which Marshal Fritz Von Mannstein threw into the climactic Crimean campaign.)

FIGHT IN NOVOROSSISK

While heavy defensive fighting and counter-attacks occupied the men of Stalingrad, street engagements raged on at the Black Sea port of Novorossisk the Russians pursued mopping-up tactics in transriver fighting in the Terek valley of the central Caucasus, and the Red army of the central front registered new gains, the Russians said. Captives were quoted as saying the German 360th infantry division was routed and that in some companies only 10 to 12 men remained.

Red infantrymen before the western gates of Stalingrad were reported to have repulsed three German attacks, destroyed six tanks and wiped out two enemy companies.

Soviet counter-attacks to the southwest were reported to have accounted for 400 Germans, 11 tanks, nine anti-tank guns and five trucks.

Red Star declared the Germans' original battle plan called for the quick capture of Stalingrad by an abrupt and deep stab into the Red army lines. They broke through to a point from which they directly threatened the city's defence zone, but then were hurled back by a counter-attack, it said.

Clement Attlee May Visit Canada In Near Future

LONDON, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Dominions Secretary Clement Attlee disclosed during a recent visit to a Newfoundland lumberjack corps in Scotland that he is planning to visit Newfoundland soon.

It is believed his visit also will take him to Canada.

Mr. Attlee, who talked to the Newfoundlanders at their Aberdeenshire camp, expressed the government's appreciation of their work.

Canadian Troops Best in Britain Asserts Pearkes

VANCOUVER, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., new general officer commanding, Pacific command, told a service club luncheon here yesterday that he could say without boasting that Canadian troops "are now the finest troops in the British Isles."

In his first address since his arrival here from England where he commanded the 1st Canadian division, Gen. Pearkes praised the work of the Canadian forces overseas and told of the hardships they suffered in the summer of 1940 when there was nothing between the coastline and London but his men.

"These men slept under thickets and in damp grass. It was very wet that fall and the hardships were terrible, yet their morale never weakened," he said.

Jail Coupon Thief

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11—(CP)—Edward Naguski, 20, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and illicit distribution of gas ration books in police court yesterday and was sentenced to three months in jail by Magistrate R. B. Graham. He was charged with stealing between 30 and 40 coupon books.

Edmonton Flier Awarded D.F.C.

LONDON, Sept. 11—(CP)—The air ministry today announced the award of Distinguished Flying Crosses to four members of the Royal Canadian Air Force who have been carrying the air war deep into German-occupied territory.

The fliers are: F.O. James Elmslee Walker of Edmonton, F.O. John Lefroy McCaul of Toronto, F.O. John William Williams, Chilliwack, B.C., and Acting Th.-Lt. P. L. I. Archer, native of Bridgetown, Barbados, B.W.I., and formerly of McGill University. (The Edmonton Bulletin carried news of Walker's award two weeks ago.)

The citation said Walker destroyed a Nazi plane while serving with the R.A.F. wing in Russia last year and has "shown a keen desire to engage the enemy at all times." Since March he has led his flight continuously on all operations.

Walker and P.O. David L. Ramsay of Calgary were the only Canadians in the R.A.F. wing which fought in Russia. On his return from Russia early this year Walker described flying in the Murmansk area much the same as winter flying in Canada except that they saw action.

Fifteen Albertans Receive "Sparks" As Aerial Gunners

CALGARY, Sept. 11. — (CP) — Wireless operator-air gunners who received their "sparks" from Pilot Officer John Higham, D.F.C., at No. 2 Wireless School, R.C.A.F., here last night were members of the school's 21st and largest graduation class.

Included were the following men: Alberta—C. A. H. Campbell, T. H. Gleig, A. J. Grenon, J. F. Hutchings, H. F. McLeod, W. G. Streeton, all of Calgary; A. J. Chabara, Vilna; L. R. Colin, Drumheller; G. A. Cook, T. Patterson, Edmonton; C. Gamble, Stony Plain; C. R. Gardner, Camrose; H. G. Hughes, Enchant; C. D. Loader, Didsbury; H. D. Underwood, Botha.

Canucks' Daring Won Decorations

OTTAWA, Sept. 11—(CP)—The story of how two determined Canadian airmen won the Distinguished Flying Cross in flying against the enemy was revealed by the Royal Canadian Air FoFree. The awards were announced previously.

FO. John Lefroy McCaul of Toronto was the navigator of a machine which attacked an enemy airfield. Over the target area, the machine ran into intense searchlight activity and anti-aircraft fire, but the opposition was defied and hits were obtained on the runway in use. Accurate navigation in the face of difficulties secured the award for FO. McCaul.

PO. John Williams of Chilliwack, B.C., received the D.F.C. after he had destroyed four enemy aircraft, two of them in one day. Later he flew his damaged machine to a base and landed it safely.

"His courageous example has been most inspiring," the citation read.

Dispatch Rider Loses Left Leg In Cycle Crash

VICTORIA, Sept. 11.—(CP)—W. N. Anger, of London, Ont., army motorcycle dispatch rider, had his left leg completely severed below the knee when the machine he was riding sideswiped a Universal Bren gun carrier at nearby Sooke Wednesday, Anger's motorcycle hit the carrier only a glancing blow but he was thrown from his machine. An army medical doctor who was in the convoy attended and Anger was rushed to military hospital at Mount Tolmie.

Alert in L.A.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11.—(AP)—Radio stations were ordered off the air here at 4:54 a.m., P.D.T. (5:54 a.m., M.D.T.) today. They resumed at 6:53 a.m.

Italo Socialists Are Reorganized

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 11.—(AP)—The Socialist Party in Italy which Mussolini's followers in early days beat down with clubs, castor oil treatments and assassination, was reported today to be raising its head against Fascism.

A Delmonte Democrate dispatch from Zurich quoted Swiss Socialist circles as declaring that the Italian Socialist Party in recent months had been reorganized with "illegal units" multiplying in factories in the greater part of Italian territory.

The Socialists, the newspaper said, recently helped in a short strike at the Fiat works.

Although strikes are prohibited in Italy, the newspaper said, "not a single policeman or soldier showed himself" during the strike.

SPORTING BLOOD

BY HARRY HARRISON KROLL

THE STORY: When Hunter Dent, Strickland Ballard's farm manager, finds Ballard's disinherited son, Junior, lying unconscious beside a satchel of money, he thinks he has a weapon against his rich but unscrupulous employer. Hunter has bet the elder Ballard that the latter will return the prize horse and new strain of corn which Ballard has stolen from him.

Shortly before Hunter finds Junior a bank messenger has been shot and robbed of $17,000, the amount in the satchel. Hunter puts the money in a safe, carries Junior, whom he thinks is drunk, to his own room. Next day he discovers that Junior has been wounded and is near death.

CHAPTER IV

HUNTER DENT could hear the butler telephoning in an agitated voice. Hunter listened again to Junior Ballard's heart. There was just a faint throb of life there yet. A great remorse came upon Hunter. When he brought the boy here last night, thinking he was only drunk, he should have made sure. Everything now was complicated. The bank messenger near death; this young dissipated boy dying; Hunter had the missing $17,000 in his safe. His mind was addled. He could hear Warwick's voice.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Ballard, come immediately. Mr. Dent is here, sir. Miss Bella is out front speaking now with Mr. Tisdale. I believe. Yes, sir. I have already called Dr. Ferguson. He should be on his way out. He said he would not stop to have breakfast. Yes, sir, there was a party here last night but it broke up early. Very well, sir."

Warwick came in. "Mr. Ballard is starting immediately."

"We'd better leave him just as he is. I wonder if we should call the police—but that would never do. We'll have to wait for his father and the doctor."

The car out front went away up the winding pretty road. Hunter caught the glint and color of it.

Red entered breathlessly. She stopped, met Hunter's eyes straight and hard. "Hunter! Is Junior in there?"

"Yes, but you'd better not—"

There was a long moment between them. "Is—is something wrong?"

"Not serious, I hope. Warwick has called Dr. Ferguson and your mother—"

"Look here, Hunter Dent. Tell me the truth. I can take it. What has happened to my brother?" She started past Hunter. He stopped her. She looked into his face. "Will you let me go ahead, Hunter?"

"All right," he said, dropping his hand from her arm. "But pull yourself together. He's bad hurt. I guess he's finished. He's lost his last bet, I have a hunch."

Hunter opened the door. Red went quickly in. Hunter watched her closely. She stepped across the room, stopped with a small gasp. If he expected her to throw herself across the body of her brother and become melodramatic he was slated for disappointment. She stood there breathing fast and looking upon the motionless youth. Hunter moved up to Red's side, a half-pace behind, just in case she could not take it. Then she turned. Her brown eyes were swimming. She went into his arms and put her face against him.

It seemed hardly more than a few moments before Strickland Ballard appeared. It was so early in the morning yet that the man had not had time to shave. Dr. Ferguson was but a moment behind. Hunter remained by the bed while the doctor made his examination. Ballard's face was a study in worry, fear, and anger.

"How is he, Doctor?"

Dr. Ferguson put his instruments in his bag. "He's not gone yet. I can't say how it will turn out. We've got to get him to the hospital for X-rays and then maybe we will know." He glanced at Warwick. "Did you call the ambulance?"

Hunter said, "We could use the big new farm truck. It is as comfortable as the ambulance and we'd save time."

"A good idea. Let's do that."

As Hunter went out to get the truck Strickland Ballard followed him into the yard. He took his baffled wrath out on Hunter. "What's been going on around here? How did this happen? I thought I left things here in your charge, sir."

Hunter was in a mood to hit Ballard where he lived—in his pen. "I am in charge of the animals, sir—and the crops. Including the famous Ballard Prolific strain. There was nothing said when I was employed here about being father to your children. I supposed you assumed that responsibility yourself." He strode off. In no time at all he came back in the powerful new truck.

They gently carried the unconscious boy out and bedded him in the truck. Hunter drove. Until he was almost in town he did not remember he had not had breakfast, not even a cup of coffee. Being an out-doors man he required food. He came to the hospital. There the attendants took Junior Ballard in. Hunter sighed. He hardly knew why. He felt sorry for the family; maybe he should have waited with them for some final news. He asked at the information desk as he started out, "This young fellow from the First National Bank, who was attacked last night and robbed—how is he?"

"Who is asking, please?" the nurse who had just come on duty asked.

"I am Hunter Dent, of the Ballard Farms."

"Are you a relative of the young man?"

"N-no. Just a casual interest."

"He is dead."

Hunter was dazed. "Dead!" he repeatedly dully. "Did—was he unconscious—"

"He died without making any statement."

"I—I see." He went out, got into the truck, and drove away.

As he passed through Middleton, he seemed to see the sleepy southern town through fresh eyes. There was the big Ballard Laboratories. They dominated the business section. There were neon and gold-leaf signs. "Southern Roses Cosmetics." "Tennessee Belle Products." "Quick Shot Tonic for chills and fever." Perhaps there were a half-dozen smaller concerns following in the steps of the great Ballard. It was known in business circles as the "Medicine Town." Ballard had done that. They said he could not do it. They bet he could not. He bet he could. Now it was local lore. Would have you believe, the wealthiest small city per capita in the South, perhaps a close rival to the oil fortunes in Texas. All this was a compliment to Strickland Ballard. In his way he was a man of vision. He saw something in some tree bark and field herbs. Middleton today was a toy sky-scraper city, with fine churches, beautiful homes, wealth—and the inevitable minor league evils that follow upon sudden fortunes.

"Sporting blood," Hunter said, half bitterly, and drove from town, taking the old river road which would let him into the big estate from the rear.

To his amazement he found Junior's big car just within the stone-and-iron gate which guarded the back boundary. The big motor was jambed against a tree. One casing had blown out. The door was open. Hunter made an examination of the spot, looked and found bloodstains in the wrecked car. His discovery did not simplify the general mystery. All Hunter could deduce was that Junior had come home by the back way, had been either so intoxicated or nearly dead he had had a wreck, by sheer strength he had got to the office, no doubt looking for Hunter; and then he had passed out.

"What a bunch of fools these Ballards are!" Hunter thought. He [illegible] on to the house. In the kitchen he got breakfast.

Afterward he went to the office. He sat down and tried to think. The messenger was dead. No info there. Junior Ballard probably would die. Hardly any tales there. Hunter Dent had the $17,000 in the safe, and the combination safely in his skull. He seemed to have, he supposed, all he needed to make old Strick Ballard come to him on his knees and say his amens. After that—what? "I wonder," he muttered. He went over to the safe, knelt, twirled the dial, opened the pondrous door.

The leather bag containing $17,000 was gone!

What To Do

I do a great deal of club work and must appear on the platform frequently. I am short and rather heavy, so would appreciate any ideas you may suggest for my clothes.

Answer — Any dress that has panels of contrasting color (solid color) from neck to hemline give a "lengthening" effect. The use of satin and crepe or reversible satin in this parallel effect is good.

In an evening dress, something with long, slim lines will flatter your figure. Avoid bright colors, flowered or printed materials, and horizontal stripes or contrasting waist and shirt effects.

White is one of the best colors for platform wear. It minimizes a woman's size better than do pastels, and gives a woman dignity and poise.

Educational Achievements Of Alberta Are Expounded At Social Credit Meeting

The present Alberta government has made a name for the province through its modern, up-to-date educational set-up, Hon. E. C. Manning, minister of trade and industry declared Thursday night when addressing a campaign meeting in support of John B. Gillies, Social Credit candidate in Sept. 22 by-election. The meeting was held at 9529 110A avenue.

Mr. Manning said that the minister of education, Premier William Aberhart, since 1936, had not only brought school grants up to date, but had also increased the total grants for educational purposes by more than $1,000,000 a year.

Mr. Gillies also spoke at the meeting, dealing with the provincial government's pension policy. He reminded the audience that the government this year has given pensioners a bonus of $5 a month, increasing the pension from $20 to $25. The cost of the increase is $600,000 a year, which is borne by the province.

PRESS FOR INCREASE

Although this bonus had eased the financial situation for aged people, the Alberta government was pressing the federal government for an increase in the amount of the pension and for a reduction in the pension age, which is now 70 years.

The address delivered by Mr. Manning follows in full:

"Tonight I should like to discuss with you a matter which to my mind is of the utmost importance to every citizen of this province and to every resident of this city. I refer to the educational affairs of our country.

"My reading of history has taught me that when a nation places as its first responsibility and paramount duty the welfare of its youth, that is an omen of a good future for the nation. On the other hand, any state that neglects the development of the rising generation is headed for disintegration. That is almost self-evident today.

"You must, therefore, agree with me that any government that makes the development and welfare of the boys and girls their highest concern is worthy of the greatest support of the people. All parents and young people should be able to judge a government by its effective interest in education.

"The present Alberta government has made a name for the province through its modern, up-to-date educational set-up. The Alberta educational system is known far and wide in Eastern Canada and in the United States as one of the most advanced, progressive and efficient systems of the present day.

"It has been discussed at every important educational gathering on the continent during the past two years, and many prominent educators from large centres in both Eastern and Western America have visited her province to study first hand the application in practice of this splendid system which is doing so much to place young Albertans in the forefront of progressive preparation for a full and abundant life.

DISTRESSING CONDITIONS

"Alberta has not always been in the van of educational progress. As a matter of fact but a few years ago when the present government took office, a number of distressing conditions were to be found, all of which had seriously deteriorated the effectiveness of education in our province. Many school districts were deeply in debt and unable to carry on without full government assistance. In such districts only a bare minimum of educational opportunities could possibly be given to the boys and girls.

"Also at that time unpaid teachers' salaries amounted to over $300,000. In many instances a district owed back salaries to four or five teachers at the same time. Country schools and equipment were in bad shape, so bad in many instances that pupils were not only unable to get inspiration of any kind from their surroundings, but were also actually in discomfort while in attendance at the schools.

"In addition, many rural children were deprived of high school courses simply because the school districts in which they lived could not provide the facilities, and the parents could not afford to send the pupils into the towns or cities for high school training.

"We here have said little about the courses of study in effect throughout the land. Volumes could be written about their deficiences. I have time to say but one thing in that regard, namely, that while the fundamentals—reading, writing and arithmetic were pounded into the pupils, little attempt was made to provide activities for the boys and girls through which their latent talents and special aptitudes could be discovered and given development. Truly this government inherited an archaic system of education.

HAS VISION

"Fortunately, the man who assumed the portfolio of minister of education was a teacher of long standing, possessing vision and foresight and a great sympathy for the under-privileged. He also had the courage to translate his vision into reality. As a result of his untiring study and efforts, the whole drab picture of 1935-36 was soon changed so that today the world is making a beaten path to Alberta to learn of its successes.

"Immediately after taking office this government initiated a movement that finally resulted in the organization of the province into new and enlarged units of educational administration. At the same time, the whole of the elementary school course of studies was drastically changed, improved, modernized and applied in the most thorough and efficient manner. With what results?

"1—There has been a rapid increase in student attendance at schools throughout the province. More regularity has been registered due to the improved facilities at the school and of transportation to and from school. Rural children are now given opportunities to take advanced work in their own schools or in divisional high schools established at strategic centres throughout the province.

"Even in the backwoods, miles from the nearest school, these students are now given opportunities to prepare for a high school diploma although the fine correspondence courses provided by the department of education. The efficiency of these courses may be judged when I tell you that over two and a quarter million sheets of study material and instructions will go out to such pupils this year. This government takes pride in having brought about a condition wherein no boy or girl within our boundaries is now beyond the reach of good educational facilities. I ask you is that worth your support?

COST DECREASED

"2—In the second place, the cost of education per pupil has been steadily decreased, and the taxation burden has been equalized. A striking comparison may be drawn from the following figures obtained from departmental reports. In the school divisions, the annual cost per pupil for the year 1937-38 was $57.33; in the year 1940-41 it was $53.59, a reduction of just about $2.00 for each pupil in the province. When you multiply this by the total number of pupils, you will readily understand that a very considerable saving has been effected in the cost after only three years' operation of the enlarged unit.

"On the other hand, the annual cost per pupil for 1937-38 in rural schools not at that time in enlarged units was $59.26, a figure which had increased to $61.73 by 1940-41. It must be perfectly apparent to all that the educational dollar today in Alberta is bringing far greater return than before this government took over. No one can question the need of efficiency at the present time when taxation is so burdensome.

"3—The present minister of education has long realized that the provincial government should have to bear a progressively larger portion of the cost of education in Alberta. Because this has not only brought school grants up to date, but he has also increased the total grants for educational purposes by more than a million dollars per year. Where else in Canada can such a record be found?

"4—Under the impetus of the new organization of education, together with the increased government grants, new schools of a modern type are rapidly displacing the old tumbledown shacks of a former day, and these new buildings are being paid for when built. More congenial surroundings are thus being supplied for our boys and girls, places where they will like to go and where they will be impelled to apply themselves with diligence to the new and interesting activities to be found for them. If you could see the actual photographs of the schools that were and the schools that are, you would need no further evidence to make you an enthusiastic supporter.

"5—In most districts better and more adequate libraries of reference have been provided. Dormitories have been built in many centres to which rural students can come to stay under expert supervision and at a cost of as low as ten dollars per month, while they attend the rural or divisional high school in that centre. Bus lines have been extended throughout the country to carry the pupils in comfort to their larger schools.

"All these things are tending to broaden the experience and educational outlook of our young people and to give them a social consciousness and development that will make of them first-class citizens. No wonder the people from other parts of America are intensely interested.

CO-OPERATION

"6—At the same time, the system of supervision has been extended so that school board, superintendent, teachers, and department of education are brought into closer co-operation than ever before for the attainment of the educational objective.

"7—And to bring the list to a close, I mention here another most important result of the new educational organization brought about by the present government. Shopwork, domestic science, sewing and commercial training are gradually spreading over the province. By these means, a practical aspect is introduced into the training of our youth, with the result that no matter at what stage a boy or girl may be forced to terminate his school career, he will have developed an acquaintance at least with activities and skills which he may further develop in practice for the earning of a livelihood. In this respect alone Alberta is laying a solid foundation, for the post-war period.

"Surely, ladies and gentlemen, I have presented ample evidence of the courage, foresight, and determination of the present government as displayed in its educational program. This deserves your support. It must be perfectly apparent that the minister of education is determined to bring equal educational advantages to both rural and urban boys and girls to the end that uniformity of educational outlook and attainments might be possible throughout the province.

"It is our determination to extend to all our youth the utmost in educational advantages that they may be adequately prepared to take these responsibilities upon themselves.

"To do this it is essential that your government should have the enthusiastic support and co-operation of very person who knows the value of educational privileges.

SUPPORT GOVERNMENT

"On September 22 it will be your opportunity of showing your appreciation and support of the government's accomplishments along this line.

"By giving your first choice to J. B. Gillies, you will say in effect, 'Carry on! Finish the job'."

GILLIES SPEAKS .....

Following is Mr. Gillies' address in full:

"In the post-war reconstruction which must be carried out, there is general agreement that two essential objectives must be obtained, viz., freedom from fear and freedom from want.

"Your provincial government has maintained a consistent attitude on the question of retirement pensions. At almost every session of the legislature a government resolution urging the federal authorities to decrease the pension age to 60 and increase the amount of the pension to at least $30 has been put forth.

"However, it has not been possible to get the federal government to consider even increasing the rate of pension by $5 a month and of decreasing the pension age to 65. Of course the reason given was that the money could not be provided.

"Recognizing the desperate plight of our older citizens who were trying to eke out an existence on $20 a month under the stress of war conditions, the provincial government faced the issue and granted an increase of $5 a month—the full cost of which is borne by the province and amounts to $600,000 a year.

"Though this has eased the position for the old folk slightly, it is still far from adequate, and the governments policy remains unchanged in pressing for an increase in the amount of pension and for a reduction in the pension age.

"I feel it is necessary to make this matter plain to you, because the C.C.F. candidate is urging that old age pensions be increased to $30 and the pension age reduced to 60 as a provincial issue in this by-election.

NOT PROVINCIAL ISSUE

"The question of old age pensions is not a provincial issue, for even if the province wished to do so, the cost of increasing pensions to $30 a month and reducing the pension age to 60 would be a prohibitive charge on taxpayers—the only source of revenue provincial governments have under the present system.

"If the province had to bear the full cost of lowering the pension age to 60 and paying a pension of $30 a month it would amount to something like nine million dollars or about 45 per cent of the total provincial revenue. With federal taxation at the level which exists, and the restricted sources of revenue left to the province by the recent agreement under wartime conditions, surely my honorable opponent cannot seriously consider this a practical proposition.

"It is no use arguing that he would urge the federal government to bear 75 per cent of the cost, for the provincial government has been doing that for over five years without success. What more could he propose to do than is already being done?

"The plain fact is, ladies and gentlemen, that it is just idle nonsense to talk about far-reaching social and economic reforms under the present monetary system. However, monetary reform is an issue carefully avoided by my C.C.F. opponent, and the Liberals and Independents have consistently voted against it. So there you are!

"Already your government is doing everything possible to bring about the reforms which can be achieved under the present system, meanwhile pressing vigorously, by every means within its power, for a reform of the monetary system, which alone can achieve the results apart from this overwhelming burden of taxation.

"I feel sure that every fair-minded citizen recognizes this. If you do I shall count on you to give me your support on September 22 when you declare your convictions.

"And while I am on the subject, let me plead with my C.C.F. opponent to desist from his—well, shall I say questionable—tactics. In his broadcast on Tuesday night he quoted the premier as saying that he was diametrically opposed to the policies which the C.C.F. have adopted for purposes of this by-election.

QUOTES STATEMENT

"May I remind my listeners that the words used by Mr. Aberhart, both in his broadcast and in his address published in the press, which my C.C.F opponent misquoted, were as follows:

"'It is not my intention to enter into any discussion of C.C.F. policies. For the most part these are not even remotely applicable to provincial matters either in connection with the prosecution of an all-out war effort or the problems of post-war reconstruction, that comment is almost superfluous.

"Since Mr. Aberhart said that, the C.C.F. have come out with a platform which, in essentially provincial affairs such as health, education, debt and so forth, is merely a statement of the policies already being carried out by the present government. Into these they have woven their policies of government ownership of industry—which cannot, by their very nature, be an issue in this by-election, and to which Mr. Aberhart referred as not being even remotely connected with provincial affairs and diametrically opposed to democratic monetary reform.

"So I say to my C.C.F. opponent —'Play the game. Be fair.' We want this to be a clean election".

Anglicans Urge Lifting of Ban On Communists

PORT ARTHUR, Sept. 11.—(CP)—Lifting of the ban on the Communist party, Jehovah Witnesses, and other sects and organizations banned in Canada after the outbreak of war was favored yesterday by the Council of Social Service of the Church of England in Canada in annual session here.

The convention passed a resolution urging "that in accordance with our Christian principles of justice and freedom, the Federal government be asked to implement the recommendations of the parliamentary committee on the Defence of Canada Regulations."

Canon W. W. Judd, Toronto, general secretary of the council, said the committee's report, tabled last July, would lift the ban on the Communists and Jehovah Witnesses, and other sects, but parliament adjourned before action was taken in the matter.

Mrs. Atwater, who is the author of "Challenge" and co-author of "The Vindication of Prophecy" recently returned from South America. She is engaged in the promulgation of the Baha'i movement, a world religion. She expects to give at least one public lecture here before returning to the United States and South America.

Founded in Persia in the middle of the nineteenth century, by Baha' u'llah, this movement now embraces the entire world. It is based on the sacred writings of Baha' u'llah.

BASIC PRINCIPLES

"The basic principles of this faith," said Mrs. Atwater, "are the oneness of mankind, the independent investigation of the truth, the foundation of all religions in one. Religion must be the cause of unity and must be in accord with science and reason," she said.

"There must be equality between men and women and prejudice of all kinds must be forgotten. We also strive for universal peace, universal education, a spiritual solution of the economic problem, a universal language, and an international tribunal."
